The 1892 Newspapers, Part 1

This journal is publishing the Hawaiian newspapers of 1892, due to historical interest. We begin with page one of Ka Leo o ka Lāhui (The Voice of the Nation), published in Honolulu on January 1, 1892. J. E. Bush was the newspaper's editor and treasurer. Although the articles' authors are not identified, it is possible that J. K. Prendergast, as secretary of the Hui 'Ao'ao Lāhui Hawai'i Liberala (Hawaiian National Liberal Party), may have written the newspaper's two political articles. As they are incomplete, two other stories found on page one will be presented in another issue of this journal. Mo'okini 27; Chapin 53.

The newspaper Ka Leo o ka Lāhui (The Voice of the Nation) was closely associated with the Hawaiian National Liberal Party; both stood out as strong proponents for Hawaiian rights. This list of the Party's key leaders, "The Head Officials and Committee Members of the <Hawaiian> National Liberal Party," is a roster of leading patriots of the day.
