

PROJECT MUSE®

---

Colonial Systems of Control

Saleh-Hanna, Viviane

Published by University of Ottawa Press

Saleh-Hanna, Viviane.

Colonial Systems of Control: Criminal Justice in Nigeria.

Ottawa: University of Ottawa Press, 2008.

Project MUSE., <https://muse.jhu.edu/>.

➔ For additional information about this book

<https://muse.jhu.edu/book/4441>

CHAPTER 9

JUNE 14, 2003

Igho Odibo

Greetings,

I am Mr. Igho Odibo, forty-two years of age, and am currently held in Kirikiri maximum security prison in Lagos, Nigeria. I was a student in Germany, studying computer assembly, before I contracted HIV/AIDS and was deported back to Nigeria in 1998. I was handed over to the Nigerian federal government for medical treatment, but they did not provide any. I have started to battle with the federal government along with battling my illness. I am currently in prison, where there is no medical treatment available to me at all. It's only some non-governmental organizations and human rights agencies that once in a while give me assistance and care for me. I have become a Christian in prison and have handed all hope over to Christ. I am currently in prison for an alleged robbery offence but have yet to face trial. In Nigeria, if you don't have money, you cannot come out of prison, sometimes for life. I have nobody coming to see me and nobody to take care of me, it's only Christ Jesus.

Mr. Igho Odibo
Kirikiri Maximum Security Prison
Lagos State, Nigeria

This page intentionally left blank