The Journal of Asian American Studies (JAAS) is an official publication of the Association for Asian American Studies. Three times a year, JAAS publishes original articles articulating the multidimensional experiences of the diverse communities that comprise Asian America and the Asian diaspora. The journal seeks to define Asian American Studies as a distinct, interdisciplinary scholarly pursuit and to integrate Asian American perspectives into various disciplines that will contribute to the further development of the field. See inside back cover for manuscript submission guidelines.
