PROJECT MUSE®

Notes on Contributors

The Eighteenth Century, Volume 50, Number 1, Spring 2009, pp.
117-118 (Article)

Published by University of Pennsylvania Press

DOI: <https://doi.org/10.1353/ecy.0.0031>

➔ For additional information about this article

<https://muse.jhu.edu/article/372746>

Notes on Contributors

TONI BOWERS is an associate professor at the University of Pennsylvania, where she teaches seventeenth- and eighteenth-century British and British-American literature. In addition to numerous scholarly articles and reviews, she is the author of two books: The Politics of Motherhood: British Writing and Culture, 1680–1760 (Cambridge, 1996), and the forthcoming Force or Fraud: British Seduction Stories and the Problem of Resistance, 1660–1760. Professor Bowers has recently co-edited a new abridgement of Richardson's Clarissa (with John Richetti). Currently, she is co-editing (with Tita Chico) a collection of essays entitled Seduction and Sentiment in the Atlantic World.

ALISON CONWAY is Associate Professor of English at the University of Western Ontario. She is the author of two books: Private Interests: Women, Portraiture, and the Visual Culture of the English Novel, 1709–1791 (Toronto, 2001) and The Protestant Whore: Courtesan Narrative and Religious Controversy in England, 1680–1750 (forthcoming, Toronto, 2010).

JOAN DEJEAN is Trustee Professor at the University of Pennsylvania. Her books include Tender Geographies: Women and the Origins of the Novel in France (Columbia, 1991); Fictions of Sappho, 1546–1937 (Chicago, 1989); Ancients against Moderns: Culture Wars and the Notion of a Fin de Siecle (Chicago, 1997); and most recently The Age of Comfort (Bloomsbury, 2009).

JOELLEN DELUCIA received her Ph.D. from Indiana University in 2007. She has published on the Bluestockings in Tulsa Studies in Women's Literature. Currently, she is completing a manuscript entitled Other Times, Other Enlightenment, which examines women writers' responses and contributions to eighteenth-century narratives of commercial and imperial development.

MELISSA MOWRY is Associate Professor of English at St. John's University. She is the author of The Bawdy Politic: Political Pornography and Prostitution (Ashgate, 2004) and the editor of Daniel Defoe's Roxana (Broadview, 2009), and is currently at work on a project entitled Ties that Bind: The Hermeneutics of Collectivity and the English Literary Imagination, 1642–1748.

ELLEN POLLAK is Professor of English at Michigan State University, where she teaches feminist theory and eighteenth-century literature and culture. Her most recent book is Incest and the English Novel, 1684–1814 (Johns Hopkins, 2003). She is currently editing A Cultural History of Women in the Age of Enlightenment, volume 4 of a 6-volume Cultural History of Women (forthcoming from Berg/Palgrave), and working on the novels of Jane Austen.

LAURA J. ROSENTHAL is Professor of English at the University of Maryland. She is author, most recently, of Infamous Commerce: Prostitution in Eighteenth-Century British Literature and Culture (Cornell, 2006) and editor of Nightwalkers: Prostitute Narratives from the Eighteenth Century (Broadview, 2008). She is currently working on cosmopolitanism in the theater and print culture of the eighteenth-century British Empire.

JENNIFER THORN is the editor of the collection Writing British Infanticide: Child-Murder, Gender, and Print, 1722–1859 (Delaware, 2004) and has published articles on topics including race in the Arabian Nights Entertainments, the representation of castration in Eliza Haywood's oriental tales, and the transatlantic context of Wheatley's depiction of maternal violence in "Niobe." She has articles forthcoming on the appropriation of working class culture in Smollett's Roderick Random and on violence in Charles Brockden Brown's novel Wieland. She is working now on a book, Phillis Wheatley: Gender, Grief, and God. She teaches at St. Anselm College.

JUDITH P. ZINSSER is Professor Emerita of History at Miami University, Ohio. She wrote Emilie Du Châtelet: Daring Genius of the Enlightenment (Penguin, 2006), and edited or co-edited collections of articles on Du Châtelet and on women in early modern science. With Isabelle Bour she translated a selection of Du Châtelet's writings for the series, "The Other Voice of Early Modern Europe" (Chicago, 2009). She is also the co-author of the two-volume, A History of Their Own: Women in Europe from Prehistory to the Present (Oxford, 2000).