

PROJECT MUSE®

---

Contributors

a/b: Auto/Biography Studies, Volume 24, Number 1, Summer 2009, pp. 167-168 (Article)

Published by The Autobiography Society

➔ For additional information about this article
<https://muse.jhu.edu/article/394180>

Contributors

Gillian Arrighi is a Lecturer in Drama in the School of Drama, Fine Art and Music at the University of Newcastle, Australia. She worked for many years as a theatre performer and now teaches acting, devising performance, and theatre histories. Recent research publications have appeared in Theatre Journal (December 2008) and Australasian Drama Studies (April 2009 and October 2010). Her current research interests include children on the stage, popular entertainments of the Victorian and Edwardian eras, and animals in performance. She is the associate editor of the recently launched e-journal, Popular Entertainment Studies.

Paul Arthur studied at the University of Western Australia and held research fellowships in Europe, North America and Australia before taking up the position of Deputy Director of the National Centre of Biography and Deputy General Editor of the Australian Dictionary of Biography, Australian National University. He has published widely on the history of technology, media, travel and empire, including Virtual Voyages: Travel Writing and the Antipodes 1605–1837 (2010) and History and New Media (forthcoming in 2011). A leading scholar in the digital history field internationally, Paul Arthur is series editor of Anthem Scholarship in the Digital Age (Anthem Press, London and New York).

Giselle Bastin is Head of English & Creative Writing at Flinders University in South Australia. Her research interests include biographies of the British Royal Family, narratives of fame and celebrity, and constructions and representations of ‘English-ness’ in popular fiction and film.

Lucy Curzon is an Assistant Professor of Modern and Contemporary Art History at The University of Alabama. She holds a PhD in Visual and Cultural Studies from The University of Rochester and is currently working on a book-length project that investigates the interplay between documentary film, photography, and painting in Britain during the 1930s and early 40s.

Jesse Field is a PhD student in the Asian Literatures, Cultures and Media program at the University of Minnesota.

Tanya Y. Kam is an associate professor of English at the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, where she specializes in teaching Multicultural Literature and Women in Literature. In addition to publishing reviews of life writing scholarship in a/b: Auto/Biography Studies, she has published articles on Japanese-Brazilian immigration and Zora Neale Hurston in ellipsis: The Journal of the American Portuguese Studies Association and The Southern Literary Journal, respectively.

Lindsay Adamson Livingston is a doctoral candidate in the Theatre program at the Graduate Center, the City University of New York, and teaches in the Journalism, Communications, and Theatre department at Lehman College. Her primary research interests include the social construction of space, memory, and history; contemporary theatre and performance in the United States; and tourist performance. She has published work in Enacting History, The Journal of the Wooden O Symposium, and The Children's Book and Play Review.

Robert McGill is an assistant professor in the Department of English at the University of Toronto, where he teaches Canadian Literature and Creative Writing. His publications include articles on Margaret Atwood, Douglas Coupland, and Elizabeth Smart, among others, as well as a novel, The Mysteries.

Mary Louise Penaz is an Adjunct Assistant Professor in the Department of English at Baruch College in New York City. She holds a MFA in Creative Writing from Bennington College and PhD in Literature from University of Houston.

Elizabeth Podnieks is an Associate Professor in the Department of English and the Graduate Program in Communication and Culture at Ryerson University, Toronto. Her most recent projects include the co-edited Textual Mothers, Maternal Texts: Motherhood in Contemporary Women's Literatures (Wilfrid Laurier UP, 2010); and the solely edited Mediating Moms: Mothering in Popular Culture (McGill-Queen's UP, forthcoming).

Jeff Shantz teaches courses in critical theory, elite deviance, community advocacy, and human rights at Kwantlen Polytechnic University in Vancouver, B.C. He has published in such academic journals as Feminist Review, Critical Sociology, Critique of Anthropology, Capital and Class, Feminist Media Studies and Environmental Politics. His book Constructive Anarchy: Building Infrastructures of Resistance (Ashgate 2010) is a groundbreaking analysis of contemporary anarchist movements.