For all of the photographs in this issue, Mosaic is most grateful to Marie-Louise Avery, a food-and-lifestyle photographer based in London who attended the Santorini Voice Symposium to photograph the event. She produced countless day-to-day photographs of the symposium, as well as stunning photos of Santorini, its landscape, architecture, food, and beautiful people. While she has worked in art direction for books and major magazines, Marie-Louise's first love has always been photography. Since 1990, she has devoted her career to this, basing herself in a London studio but also undertaking location trips to France, Italy, South Africa, and the United States. Marie-Louise lives in a fifteenth-century rural cottage in Kent with her husband, Andro Linklater.
