KA 'ŌLELO MUA NA KA LUNA HO'OPONOPONO (EDITOR'S INTRODUCTION)

Ua ho'okumu 'ia ka Papahana Ho'oilina 'Ōlelo Hawai'i (Hawaiian Language Legacy Program) me ka mana'o e mālama, ho'opuka a ho'olaha aku i nā 'ōlelo Hawai'i i palapala 'ia ma ke kenekulia 19 me ka 20 (i kapa 'ia ma 'ane'i 'o nā "Palapala Ho'oilina") i mea a'o e ola a laupa'i ai ka 'ōlelo a mo'omeheu Hawai'i.

No nā lula me nā kulekele e ho'okele nei i ka hana ma kēia puke pai, e kipa i ke kahua pūnaeweale <<http://hooilina.olelo.hawaii.edu>>.

Ma kēlā pukana kēia pukana o nei puke pai, e ho'okomo 'ia ka 'ike o nā molekumu nui he 'eono.

- * Nā 'atikala i loihape 'ia mai ka 'ohina "Hawaiian Ethnographic Notes" (HEN) i koho a unuhi kāmua 'ia e Mary Kawena Pukui, e ho'omaka ana me ka mo'olelo no ka mahi'ai 'ana.
- * Nā palapala aupuni, e ho'omaka ana me nā kumukānāwai.
- * Nā nūpepa, e ho'omaka ana me ka nūpepa mua mai ka makahiki 1834.
- * Nā nūpepa o nā wā huliau, e ho'omaka ana me nā nūpepa o ka makahiki 1892.
- * Nā kumuhana pākanaka, 'o ia ho'i, nā mo'olelo, nā mele a me nā 'ano mo'okalaleo 'ē a'e, e ho'omaka ana me ka mo'olelo o Kahahana.

The Hawaiian Language Legacy Program (Papahana Ho'oilina 'Ōlelo Hawai'i) was created to preserve, publish and disseminate 19th and 20th century Hawaiian language materials (collectively called here the "Legacy Materials") for the teaching and revitalization of the Hawaiian language and culture.

The rules and policies that direct the work of the journal exceed 100 pages and are available at the journal's website <<http://hooilina.olelo.hawaii.edu>>.

In each issue, the journal provides information from six major sources:

- * Edited works from the "Hawaiian Ethnographic Notes" (HEN) collection, consisting of materials mainly selected and translated in draft form by Mary Kawena Pukui, starting with agricultural lore.
- * Government documents, starting with the constitutions.
- * Chronological newspapers, starting in 1834 with the first paper.
- * Chronological newspapers from historically critical times, starting with the newspapers of 1892.
- * Humanities pieces, including stories, chants and other literature, beginning with the story of Kahahana.

* Nā kumuhana haumāna, e ho‘omaka ana me ka puke ha‘awina ‘anatomia mai ke Kulanui o Hawai‘i ma Lahaina Luna mai.

Aia aku aia mai, e ho‘opuka ‘ia nā ‘ikamu kūikawā ma waho a‘e o nā ‘ano ma‘amau he ‘eono.

Mamuli o ka pahuhopu nui o nei puke pai, ‘o ia ho‘i, ka mālama, ho‘opuka a ho‘olaha ‘ana a‘e i nā palapala kuamua, ‘a‘ole i nui ke komo o nā mana‘o kālailai me ka ho‘ākāka.

He ‘ehā kolamu o kēlā me kēia ‘ikamu. Aia ma ke kolamu mua he kope o nā ‘ōlelo o ka palapala kūmole. Aia ma ke kolamu ‘elua ka ‘ōlelo i hō‘ano hou ‘ia a i ho‘opololei ‘ia nā pa‘i hewa o ke kolamu mua. Aia ma ke kolamu ‘ekolu ka unuhi ‘ōlelo Pelekānia. I kekahi manawa, ua lawe ‘ia mai ia unuhi mai kekahi kūmole ‘ē a‘e. Ke ‘ole e komo kekahi mea, aia ma ke kolamu ‘ehā nā kuhia kikokikona.

Ua ho‘omākaukau ‘ia kēlā me kēia māhele o kēia pukana mua e ho‘okahi a ‘elua paha laekahi ‘ōlelo. Ua loihape ‘ia akula ia hana e kekahi o nā loihape, ho‘oponopono ‘ia akula e nā luna loihape a pau he ‘elima a ho‘oponopono hope ‘ia akula e a‘u. Ua komo nā loli ma ia mau pae ho‘oponopono ‘ekolu pākahi a pau. He helu ‘ia nā laekahi ‘ōlelo, nā loihape a me nā luna loihape ma ka papa kuhikuhi. Ua nui hou aku ka po‘e i kōkua ma kēia ka‘inahana.

Ua noa i ka lehulehu ākea nā mea a pau ma loko o nei puke pai i pa‘i ‘ia a i ho‘olele kahua pūnaeweke ‘ia ho‘i me ke koina na‘e penei: Ke ho‘ohana ‘ia ka ‘ōlelo hō‘ano hou a unuhi ‘ōlelo Pelekānia paha, e ho‘okomo pū ‘ia i loko o ia kikokikona ho‘okahi a ma ke kuhia o lalo paha, ka ‘ōlelo kūmole. He hō‘ike kēia i ko nei puke pai

* Students’ materials, starting with a textbook on anatomy from the College of Hawai‘i at Lahaina Luna.

From time to time, special items outside of these six areas may also be included.

As the journal’s main objectives are to preserve, publish and disseminate primary documents, a minimum of secondary analysis and commentary are included.

Four columns appear for each piece. The first column presents a copy of the original words of the Legacy piece. The second column presents contemporary standardized orthography (modern spelling), and generally will correct misspellings from the first column. The third column provides an English translation that may be an edited reprinting from another source. The fourth column, unless otherwise stated, provides textual notes.

Each of the sections of this first issue were worked on by one or two language specialists. Their work was then copyedited, edited by a group of senior reviewers and ultimately edited by myself. Changes were made at each of these three editorial levels. The specialists, copyeditors and reviewers are listed in the table of contents. A large number of additional individuals assisted the process.

All materials within the journal are freely available in electronic and printed form, and the public is invited to use them, with this condition: Any quoted use of the contemporary standardized orthography or the English translation must be accompanied in the same writing or in an associated footnote with a corresponding quoted copy of the source orthography. This reflects this journal’s commitment to recognizing the source orthography as vital to accessing and understanding the materials of the Hawaiian Legacy.

Never before has an endeavor of this scope been attempted. The several dozen individuals listed in the Acknowledgments (pp. 161–164) all contributed to this journal in their own way and are sincerely thanked. The work of many others, not listed, is also appreciated.

Finally, this journal would not be possible but for the lives, knowledge and sacrifice of the Hawaiian language authors who have passed on and whose works are published here. Although they have all now entered the sleep that knows no seasons, the authors’ words may be heard through the rustling of these pages as they are turned. Ka Ho‘oilina is presented with love and gratitude to those whose priceless legacy immeasurably enriches us all.
