The Freedom Summer Housing Project: A Service-Learning Collaboration for USM Students, Faculty, Staff, and the Residents of Palmers Crossing

The Freedom Summer Housing Project was a service project as part of the “Freedom Summer 1964-2014 Conference” held at The University of Southern Mississippi in late June 2014. This project entailed building a ramp and stairs for a family living in the Palmers Crossing area of Hattiesburg, an area of historical significance for African Americans seeking their civil rights, including the right to vote.

The Housing Project was done in partnership with the Center for Community and Civic Engagement (CCCE) and the Hattiesburg Area Habitat for Humanity.

Student project participants:

John Brown
Brianna Crager
Khafre Ghold
Kalyn Johnson
Helen Nix
Lena Schexnayder
Jarvis Walker
