Welcome back to the American Journal of Psychiatric Rehabilitation!

We apologize for the delay in publishing this issue of the American Journal of Psychiatric Rehabilitation, but we are happy to report that the cause of the delay involved finding a new home, and that process is now complete. This double issue, and the companion double issue to be published in the Fall, represent what we hope will be a new and improved journal published by the University of Nebraska Press. In addition to being able to publish a year's worth of articles in six months' time, we are open again for submissions of new manuscripts and invite our readers to consider us as a primary outlet for the important work you are doing—both in establishing and implementing evidence-based practices and in collecting and sharing practice-based evidence. We will do our best to ensure that you once again can count on the American Journal of Psychiatric Rehabilitation to showcase the most promising work being conducted in the field, both in America and beyond, as we continue to count on you for your contributions.
