

PROJECT MUSE®

Primitive Minds

Anna Neill

Published by The Ohio State University Press

Neill, Anna.

Primitive Minds: Evolution and Spiritual Experience in the Victorian Novel.

Columbus: The Ohio State University Press, 2013.

Project MUSE., <https://muse.jhu.edu/>.

➔ For additional information about this book

<https://muse.jhu.edu/book/27531>

INDEX

- Adam Bede* (Eliot), 92, 118
Alley, Sarah, 109
All the Year Round (periodical), 64–65, 72
Anatomy of Melancholy (Burton), 109–10
Anderson, Amanda, 5 animal magnetism: occult associations, efforts to remove, 126; Prichard on, 54.
 See also mesmerism
Archer, William, 174, 219n20
Arnold, Matthew, 155
art, reality in, as mind-assembled abstraction, 120 artistic imagination: as function of dreamy mind, 129; shaping of by social environment, Eliot on, 96–97; and sympathy, 94, 95, 96; and vision, 94–95 associationist psychology, 14
atavism: vs. degeneration, 125, 134, 136–38, 146; detectives' use of primitive mind as, 121, 125, 134; Doyle on, 136, 137–38; in Doyle's Professor Challenger stories, 149–50; history of concept, 137; and modernist break from past, 205n11; primitive mind of Sherlock Holmes as, 125, 134, 136–37, 146, 147; scientific debate on, 137
Atkinson, Henry George, 54–55
automatism of dreamy state: as escape from modernity, in Hardy, 152–53, 159–67, 172–73, 173–74, 179–80; research on, 23–24

Bacon, Francis, 114
Bain, Alexander, 15–16, 17
Barlow, John, 23, 41
Beer, Gillian, 30, 97, 209n6
Bell, Charles, 46
Bertillon, Alphonse, 147
Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine (periodical), 43, 45

- Blakeslee, Susan, 93
- Bleak House* (Dickens): dreamy state in, and clairvoyant power, 76–78, 79, 80–82, 84, 182; dreamy state in, and fragmentation of identity, 74–83; ending, ambiguity of, 83; epilepsy in, and dissolution of the self, 68, 74–75, 78, 79–80; Inspector Bucket, as model for nineteenth-century detectives, 122; narrative instability in, 29; narrator of, dreamy state in, 75, 79–81; nervous disorders in, 74; scholarship on, 66; self-control in, 75, 76, 78, 82–83; social dissolution in, 82
- Boismont, Alexandre Brière de, 169–70
- Bolt, Peter, 197n71
- Braid, James, 25, 111–13, 126, 127
- Brain* (periodical), 26
- Brantlinger, Patrick, 207n44
- Braun, Gretchen, 34
- Breuer, Joseph, 13
- Brigham, Amariah, 36–37
- Bright, Richard, 69
- British Association for the Advancement of Science, 6
- British Medical Journal* (periodical), 26
- Brontë, Charlotte: and dreamy state, intuition as product of, 50–51; and dreamy state, moral meaning of, 31, 182; dreamy state in, as liberating experience for women, 34–35, 36, 37, 43; dreamy visions in, emphasis on physiological basis of, 43; and evolutionary explanation of mind, 16; on imagination, difficulty of capturing products of, 63; on imagination, necessity of exercising, 62–63; imagination and dreamy state in, 47–48; mental science works available to, 43; on mesmerism, 54; and oppression, gender and religious, 35; on organized Christianity, 35–36; on presentiment, 51; racialized view of primitive mind in, 34, 38–39, 51–52; on religious faith, 54–55; Romantic-era mental science in, 46–47; tension between material and spiritual view of mind in, 35–40, 45–47, 54–55, 57–60, 62–63; on visual art, inner experience in, 195n25; “When Thou Sleepest,” 37. See also Jane Eyre; Villette
- Brontë, Patrick, 35, 43
- Brooks, Peter, 28, 140
- Buchan, William, 43–44, 48
- Bugar, Susan, 37
- Burton, Richard, 109–10
- Byerly, Alison, 195n25
- Cadwallader, Jen, 198n14
- Caldwell, Janis McLaren, 12
- Calmet, Augustine, 73–74
- Calquhoun, J. C., 126, 127
- Carpenter, William Benjamin: on catalepsy, 113; on dreamy mind, 129; influence on Collins, 133; on mesmerism, 24–25; on religious experience, 22–23, 23–24; on unconscious mind and occult phenomena, 23–24, 113–14, 125–26, 168; on will, power of, 21–22, 23; on will, surrender of, 125–26, 147
- Carroll, David, 92
- Casaubon, Meric, 110–11
- “A Case of Identity” (Doyle), 138, 139–40, 150
- Cass, Godfrey (Silas Marner character), 117, 118
- catalepsy, 203n40. See also trance phenomena
- catalepsy in Eliot: and dissolution of self, 92; and failure of narrative clairvoyance, 93, 108–9, 114, 116, 118; as inverse of creativity, 107–8; as inverse of sympathy, 92, 94, 114, 120; as medical mystery, 108, 109, 115; as metaphor for arrested social growth, 116–17, 120; and narrative deanimation, 108, 117, 120; as reaction of overwhelmed mind, 92, 104–7, 120, 182; sudden awareness of larger context of life and, 101, 105–6; and visionary mind, precarious quality of, 92
- censorship, Hardy on, 154

- Cerebral Physiology and Materialism* (Engledue), 73
- Challenger, Professor (Doyle character), 147–48
- Chambers, Robert, 15, 45, 81–82
- Chamber's Edinburgh Journal* (periodical), 43
- Charcot, Jean-Martin, 13, 26
- Christianity, Brontë on, 35–36
- “A Christmas Ghost Story” (Hardy), 176
- clairvoyance: in Bleak House, 76–78, 79, 80–82, 182; dreamy state and, 1–2; of Eliot's narrators, catalepsy and, 93, 108–9, 114, 116, 118; of Eliot's narrators, limitations of, 103–4, 107–8; in mesmerized subjects, efforts to explain, 125–26; in Our Mutual Friend, 84; vs. scientific deduction, in Eliot, 103–4; sympathy and, 110–11; in Victorian detective fiction, 121, 123
- clairvoyance, in Daniel Deronda: and catalepsy of overwhelmed mind, 104–7, 120, 182; failure of, 93; and lower minds, 101, 102–3; narrative, limitations of, 103–4, 105–6; as product of exceptional mind, 99–100; sympathy underlying, 100
- Clare, Angel (Tess character): denial of nature-culture web by, 157, 158; and dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern, 159, 160–61; and history, nature, and culture, individual entrapment within, 155, 157–59; modernity of, 158
- Clausson, Nils, 207n44
- climate: and mental health, 43–45; and mental health, in Jane Eyre, 52–53; and racial characteristics, 52
- Cohen, Mordecai (Daniel Deronda character): catalepsy of, as response of overwhelmed mind, 104–5; clairvoyance of, as product of exceptional mind, 99–100, 101; and Deronda as golem, 101–2, 103; impact on Deronda, 103; and sympathy underlying clairvoyance, 100
- Coleridge, Samuel T., interest in dreamy state, 27
- Collins, Wilkie: and cultural degeneration, 130; and dreamy state, moral meaning of, 31–32; on dreamy state, as simultaneously neural and spiritual, 129–34, 151; on dreamy state, insight of, 129; Gothic tropes in, 130; The Haunted Hotel, 130; Heart and Science, 130–31; heroes, nervous spiritualism of, 130–31; and mesmerism and spiritualism, interest in, 129, 133; The Woman in White, 130–31. See also The Moonstone (Collins)
- common sense, as basis of synthetic knowledge, 113
- Comte, Auguste, 31, 95, 108
- Conolly, John, 23, 40–41
- consciousness, Damasio on characteristics of, 181–82
- Cook, Florence, 10
- Corelli, Marie, 173
- creative genius, Lewes on, 94–95
- creativity: catalepsy as inverse of in Eliot, 107–8; origins of, as obscure, 93. See also entries under imagination
- Crichton-Brown, James, 7, 27
- The Criminal* (Ellis), 137
- Cuff, Sergeant (Moonstone character): and inability of rational mind to grasp full truth, 131, 132, 133–34; superior mind of, 122
- cultivated detachment, dreamy state as disturbance of, 5
- cultural degeneration: in Bleak House, 82; in Collins, 130; critiques of realism and, 136–37, 138–39; Doyle's detective fiction and, 136–37, 138–39, 207n41; evolutionary degeneration and, 123–24; Nordau on, 135, 138–39; novels presenting degeneration and, 128
- culture: in Hardy, individual entrapment within hybrid of nature and, 153–59, 161–62; and racial characteristics, 52
- Cuvier, Georges, 13, 43, 188n47, 189n48
- Daily Chronicle* (periodical), 176
- Dallas, E. S., 29–30

- Damasio, Antonio, 181–83
- Dames, Nicholas, 29
- Daniel Deronda* (Eliot): catalepsy in, 92–93; catalepsy in, as response of overwhelmed mind, 104–7, 120, 182; contrast between exceptional and primitive minds as theme in, 94; loosening of thought into vision and prophesy in, 92; narrator's clairvoyance, limitations of, 103–4, 105–6; scholarship on dismantled identities in, 92
- Daniel Deronda* (Eliot), clairvoyance in: and catalepsy of overwhelmed mind, 104–7, 120, 182; failure of, 93; lower minds and, 101, 102–3; as product of exceptional mind, 99–100; sympathy underlying, 100; and visionaries as creators and feeders of the world, 100–101
- Darwin, Charles: on atavism, 137, 145; on development of human moral life, 7; Dickens's familiarity with, 72; on evolution of human consciousness, 15, 18; and inheritance of acquired characteristics, 202n20; on reading poetry, 16; theory of, as unfixed, 12
- Darwin, Erasmus: on mind as material mechanism, 15; and Romantic-era mental science, 46
- Daston, Lorraine, 4
- David Copperfield* (Dickens), 68
- Davis, Michael, 97
- Defoe, Daniel, 18
- Degeneracy: Its Causes, Signs and Results* (Talbot), 123, 137
- Degeneration* (Nordau), 20, 123–25, 128, 135, 138–39, 144
- Degeneration: A Chapter in Darwinism* (Lankester), 19, 123, 124–25
- degeneration, cultural: in Bleak House, 82; in Collins, 130; critiques of realism and, 136–37, 138–39; Doyle's detective fiction and, 136–37, 138–39, 207n41; evolutionary degeneration and, 123–24; Nordau on, 135, 138–39; novels presenting degeneration and, 128
- degeneration, evolutionary: vs. atavism, 125, 134, 136–38, 146; and cultural decline, 123–24; as cumulative, 123; detectives' use of primitive mind and, 125; dreamy state as product of, 20; environmental component of, 123–24; hereditary component of, 123; Holmes's atavistic primitive mind and, 134; medicalization of concept, 123; nineteenth-century studies of, 19–20, 71–72, 124–25; origin of concept, 123
- degeneration, novels presenting: and conflation of realism and mysticism, 127; and cultural degeneration, 128; vs. detective novels' atavistic primitive mind, 136–37, 138–39, 207n41; and will, failure of, 127–28
- déjà vu: in Dickens, 68–69; Victorian accounts of, 7
- de la Rue, Madame, 67
- de Laura, David, 155
- Deronda, Daniel (Daniel Deronda character): as golem, 101–2, 103; unfocused sympathy of, 101, 102
- Des accès incomplets d'épilepsie* (Herpin), 69
- The Descent of Man* (Darwin), 145; on evolution of human consciousness, 15, 18; on unbiased mind of naturalists, 7
- detective fiction, Victorian: and criminal mind as primitive mind, 146; roots in sensation novel, 120–21; and theories of unconscious mind, 146. See also Doyle, Arthur Conan
- detectives, use of primitive mind by, 122–23; as atavism, 121, 125, 134; and clairvoyant power, 121, 123. See also Holmes, Sherlock
- “The Developmental Hypothesis” (Spencer), 16
- developmentalism, and efforts to restore soul to model of mind, 16–20
- Le Diable boîteux* (Le Sage), 140
- Dickens, Charles: and dreamy state, interest in, 27; and dreamy state, moral meaning of, 31; epilepsy of, 67;

- familiarity with spiritualist phenomena, 67, 73–74; interest in physical origin of spiritual experiences, 64–65, 66, 74, 90; and mental science, familiarity with, 64–65, 69, 72–73, 78, 200n55; and spiritualism, skepticism about, 64–65; visit to epileptics at Wapping workhouse, 78–79
- Dickens's novels:
- David Copperfield*, 68; dreamy state in, and clairvoyant power, 76–78, 79, 80–82, 84, 182; dreamy state in, and otherworldly reference, 65; dreamy state in, narrative uses of, 65–66, 68, 75, 79–81, 86–89; exploration of physical origin of spiritual experiences in, 66, 74
 - Great Expectations*, dedication of, 200n55
 - Hard Times*, narrative instability in, 29; mental dissolution in, 74; physical origin of spiritual experiences in, 84, 90; scholarship on self-control in, 75; scholarship on use of occult in, 66–67; spiritualization of social truths in, 65; theory of dissolution underlying dreamy states, 65, 68
 - See also Bleak House; epilepsy in novels of Dickens; narrators in Dickens; Our Mutual Friend
- dissolution: in Bleak House, 67, 74–75, 78, 79–80, 81, 83; degeneration and, 19, 137; Dickens's dreamy state and, 65, 68; in Eliot's novels, 92, 108, 114, 116–17; in Our Mutual Friend, 89–90; and primitive mind, access to, 26; social, in Bleak House, 82; theory of, 19–20, 70, 71–72. See also catalepsy; degeneration, evolutionary
- Dixon, Edmund, 89
- Domestic Medicine* (Buchan), 43–44
- Doyle, Arthur Conan: and atavism vs. degeneracy, 137–38, 146; as contemporary of Hardy, 152; Darwinism of, 152; and dreamy mind, moral meaning of, 31–32; and dreamy state, accounts of, 20; The History of Spiritualism, 141, 142, 147; “The Land of Mist,” 150; The Lost World, 148; and Professor Challenger as atavistic genius, 147–48; and spiritualism, interest in, 137–38, 141; spiritualism in later works of, 134; “When the World Screamed,” 148
- Doyle's detective fiction: atavism and primitive mind in, 125, 134, 136–37, 146, 147, 149–50; “A Case of Identity,” 138, 139–40, 150; degenerate world lurking beneath civilization in, 135; “The Final Problem,” 150; healing power of reason in, 135–36; The Hound of the Baskervilles, 146–49, 150; “The Man with the Twisted Lip,” 136; primitive mind in, as source of power, 136, 138, 139–40, 146–49, 150–51; “The Speckled Band,” 136; A Study in Scarlet, 135, 136, 147; theories of cultural degeneration and, 136–37, 138–39, 207n41
- Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde* (Stevenson), 127, 128
- Dracula* (Stoker), 127, 128
- “The Dream as a Revelation” (Sully), 26, 32
- dreamy state: as challenge to ethic of self-restraint, 37; definition of, 5; difficulty of describing in words, 7–8; epilepsy and, 67, 68, 69, 70; hypochondriasis and, 41–42; in nineteenth-century literary criticism, 29–30; as product of evolutionary degeneration, 20; prophetic content of, 1–2; as revelation of soul, 20; Romantic views on, 42–43, 46–47; scientific study of, 2, 129, 167–72; in Victorian detective fiction, and atavism, 121, 125, 134. See also mental science research, nineteenth century; primitive mind; specific authors and works
- dreamy state, as simultaneously material and spiritual: in Brontë, 35–40, 45–47, 54–55, 57–60, 62–63; as characteristic of Victorian narrative realism, 9, 10, 13–14, 32, 142; in Collins, 129–34, 151; James on, 21

- dreamy state, evolutionary explanations of, 3–4, 20, 21–26; materialization of spiritual impulses in, 5, 8, 9, 20, 21–25, 27, 109–14, 125–26, 168–72; and moral meaning, creation of, 3–4, 20, 31–32; as not-inconsistent with spiritual life, 5, 8, 14, 129–34, 151; and religious experience, 22–23; resistance to elimination of spiritual dimension by, 9, 11, 30–31; will and, 21–22, 23. See also degeneration, evolutionary
- dreamy state and imagination: artistic creativity and, 129; in Brontë, 47–48; Romantic views on, 42–43; scientific views on, 129
- dreamy state in Victorian realist novels, 27–32, 183; frequency of appearance, 2, 7–8; and moral meaning, creation of, 31–32; and objectification of subjective experience, 28; and opening of narrative fabric to non-rational possibilities, 5, 183; scientific approach to, 3–4; as simultaneously material and spiritual, 9, 10, 13–14, 32, 142; spiritual significance attached to, 8
- Du Maurier, George, 127
- Dupotet, Charles, 73
- d'Urbeyfield, Tess (Tess character): and dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern, 159–62, 173, 179–80; and entrapment of characters in history, nature, and cultural institutions, 155
- Dying to Know* (Levine), 209n6
- The Dynasts* (Hardy), 165–66
- Eagleton, Terry, 35
- Eastern mysticism: associations of mesmerism with, 127; in Gothic-realist hybrid works, 128; as inescapable twin of modern mental science in Moonstone, 131–32, 134
- The Edinburgh Review* (periodical), 43, 45
- Edwards, Jonathan, 110
- Eliot, George: on alliance between intellect and feeling, 119; and artistic creativity, 96; on artistic form, shaping of by social environment, 96–97; Dallas on, 30; and dreamy mind, moral meaning of, 31; “Evangelical Teaching,” 119; and evolutionary explanations of mind, 15–16, 18; on evolutionary progress of human mind, 119; interplay of realist and preternatural sensitivities in, 20; Lewes’s influence on, 118; organicist aesthetics of, 97; on religious faith in primitive minds, 118, 119; “Silly Novels by Lady Novelists,” 96; on societal evolution, 97
- Eliot’s novels:
 - Adam Bede*, 92, 118; contrast between exceptional and primitive minds as theme in, 93–94, 98; Darwinian themes in, 97; insect as metaphor in, 98, 101
 - Middlemarch*, 20; mysterious power of communication of lower mind in, 98; and positivist idealism, as avenue to true understanding of reality, 92; previsionary, primitive self in, 92; scholarship on dismantled identities in, 92
 - See also* catalepsy in Eliot; Daniel Deronda (Eliot); narrators in Eliot; Silas Marner (Eliot); sympathy in Eliot
- Elliotson, John: conversion to spiritualism, 126, 133; Dickens and, 67, 72, 200n55; on divided personalities, 85; influence on Collins, 133; and mesmerism, interest in, 25, 67, 72, 126, 127, 200–201n57; The Moonstone and, 122; on trance phenomena, 73
- Elliott, Nathan, 196n54
- Ellis, Havelock, 137
- The Emotions and the Will* (Bain), 17
- Engledue, William, 73
- environment: and mental health, in Jane Eyre, 52–53; and mental health, research on, 43–45; and racial characteristics, 52
- epilepsy: cause of, nineteenth-century theories on, 69–70; of Dickens, 67; Dickens’s visit to epileptics at Wap-

- ping workhouse, 78–79; and dreamy state, 67, 68, 69, 70; and evolutionary degeneration, 19; and hysteria, 199n30; nineteenth-century research on, 69–71
- epilepsy in novels of Dickens, 67, 68; and dissolution of the self, 68, 74–75, 78, 79–80; and divided personality, 85–86; and dreamy state, 67–68, 74–75; and expanded awareness, 68; and nervous dissolution, 68; in Oliver Twist, 67
- Ermath, Elizabeth Deeds, 4
- Esdale, James, 127
- Esquirol, J. E. D.: Brontë and, 43; on epilepsy, 69; on hypochondriasis, 41; on hysteria, 199n30; influence of, 22–23; on mental illness, 44; on religion, 22–23; on visions, 168
- Essay on the Theory of the Earth* (Cuvier), 43
- “Essays Classical” (Myers), 172
- Essays on Hypochondriacal and Other Nervous Affections* (Reid), 44–45
- “Evangelical Teaching” (Eliot), 119
- Evidence as to Man’s Place in Nature* (Huxley), 1
- evolution: as cycle, in Our Mutual Friend, 89–90; and privileged status of human beings, 15; and progress of human race, 6–7
- Evolution and Ethics* (Huxley), 14
- evolutionary explanations of mind, 3–4, 14–20, 21–26; controversy surrounding, 14–15, 16; efforts to restore soul to, 16–20; Eliot on, 97, 98; and evolutionary degeneration, 19–20, 71–72, 124–25; Lewes on, 95–96, 97–98; materialization of spiritual impulses in, 5, 8, 9, 16, 20, 21–25, 27, 109–14, 125–26, 168–72; and moral meaning, creation of, 3–4, 20, 31–32; as not-inconsistent with spiritual life, 5, 8, 14, 129–34, 151; resistance to elimination of spiritual dimension by, 9, 11, 30–31; and sympathy as driver of social progress, 94, 95–96; Victorian novelists’ interest in, 15–16, 20; and visionary nature of synthetic knowledge, 113; will and, 21–22, 23. See also degeneration, evolutionary
- evolutionary science: as context for nineteenth-century research on mind, 5; and dreamy state as object of study, 2; in medical approach to dreamy state, 4–5; opposition to theories of, 13; penetration of Victorian literature by, 12; and psychology, impact on, 13; in realist novels’ approach to dreamy state, 5; Victorian understanding of, 12–13
- Expression of the Emotions in Man and Animals* (Darwin), 17
- Eyre, Jane (Jane Eyre character): dreamy episodes of, 47–49, 53; dreamy episodes of, as liberating experience, 43, 53, 63, 173; earthly and spiritual fulfillment, achievement of, 56, 57; hypochondriasis of, 35, 39–40, 50, 53, 63; and mental health, impact of environment and heredity on, 53; and premonitions, naturalization of, 50–52; and primitive mind, exhibitions of, 34, 53; psychological instability of, 33, 34; and tension between religious and scientific views of primitive mind, 36–37; withholding of information by, 38
- Facts in Mesmerism* (Townshend), 126
- fact vs. subjective awareness, 4
- Fall, Franz, 46
- The Feeling of What Happens* (Damasio), 182–83
- Ferrier, James, 45
- “The Final Problem” (Doyle), 150
- First Principles: A New System of Philosophy* (Spencer), 72
- Flourney, Theodore, 173
- Footfalls on the Boundary of Another World* (Owen), 74
- The Fortnightly Review* (periodical), 97
- Freud, Sigmund, 13
- From India to the Planet Mars* (Flourney), 173

- Gallagher, Catherine, 75
- Galton, Francis, 145
- The Gay Science* (Dallas), 29–30
- gender in Brontë: scholarship on, 34; and spiritual feelings as escape from patriarchal oppression, 34–35, 36, 37, 43
- genius: origins of, as obscure, 93; origins of, scientific research on, 143–45; of Sherlock Holmes, as product of atavistic primitive mind, 134; sympathy and, 94–95. See also artistic imagination
- Gettelman, Debra, 193n138
- “The Ghost of the Past” (Hardy), 177
- Gilbert, Sandra, 37
- Glen, Heather, 34
- Glendening, John, 153
- Gothic-realist hybrid works: Doyle’s detective fiction as, 136; and portrayal of degeneration, 127–28, 136–37, 206n27
- Gould, Stephen J., 188n47
- Great Expectations* (Dickens), dedication of, 200n55
- Guster (Bleak House character): epilepsy of, 67, 78, 82; and primitive mind, triumph of over reason, 78
- Guy Mannering (Scott), 7
- Haeckel, Ernst, 17
- Hall, Marshall, 23
- Hallucinations, or the Rational History of Apparitions* (de Boismont), 169–70
- hallucinations and visions. See clairvoyance; visions and hallucinations
- Hamilton, William, 23, 24, 168
- Hard Times* (Dickens), narrative instability in, 29
- Hardy, Thomas: agnosticism of, 152; Arnold’s secular humanism and, 155; on censorship, 154; as contemporary of Doyle, 152; and dreamy state, moral meaning of, 31; on dreamy state, 7, 8, 20, 27; The Dynasts, 165–66; Myers’s influence on, 172; on novelist, “gift” of, 153; on novels, naturalism in, 172, 174, 183; on novels, reflection of life in, 154–55; and poetry, turn to, 153, 174; on poetry, appeal of, 174; poetry of, visions and spectral voices in, 175–80; rationalism of, 172. See also The Return of the Native (Hardy); Tess of the d’Urbervilles (Hardy)
- Hardy’s novels: ache of the modern in, 153, 155, 156–57, 157–58, 179; ancient and primitive forms, resurgence of, 153; Darwinism of, 152, 153–54, 209n6; disempowerment and alienation in, 157; dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern in, 152–53, 159–67, 172–73, 173–74, 179–80; dreamy state in, as moments of meaning in existence, 173; and entrapment of characters, dreamy state’s impotence in face of, 173–74, 179–80; and entrapment of individuals within history, nature, and culture, 153–59, 161–62; modernity embedded in, 153; narrative instability in, 29; narrative voice, dreamy mind in, 153; nature as product of unconscious creative Will in, 165–66; nature as refuge in, 153–54; A Pair of Blue Eyes, 7; primitive mind in, characteristics of, 152–53; realist portrayal of nature and society in, 154–59; spiritualism in, as point of access to premodern psyche, 172
- Harleth, Gwendolen (Daniel Deronda character): catalepsy of, as product of terror of clairvoyance in lower minds, 101, 105–6; and clairvoyance of lower minds, 101, 102–3; impact on Deronda, 103
- Harmon, John (Our Mutual Friend character): dreamy state in, 84–85; as figurative ghost, 83–84
- Hartley, David, 14
- The Haunted Hotel* (Collins), 130
- Hayles, N. Katherine, 2
- Heart and Science* (Collins), 130–31
- heredity: and degeneration, 123; and mental health, 43–44, 52–53; and racial characteristics, 44, 45, 52–53
- Herpin, Théodore, 69
- Hexam, Lizzie (Our Mutual Friend character), dreamy states in, 84, 86

- The History of Spiritualism* (Doyle), 141, 142, 147
- The History of the Modern Fact* (Poovey), 4
- Hodgkin, Thomas, 52
- Holmes, Sherlock: death of, 150; methods, real-life applicability of, 207n42; primitive mind in, 122, 135, 139; primitive mind in, as atavistic, 125, 134, 136–37, 146, 147; primitive mind in, as source of supernormal insight, 136, 138, 139–40, 146–49, 150–51; rational intelligence in, as antithesis of degenerative influences, 135–36; superior mind of, 122
- Home, Daniel D., 10, 65, 126
- The Hound of the Baskervilles* (Doyle), 146–49, 150
- Household Words* (periodical), 64, 89
- Howitt, William, 65
- human beings, privileged status of, evolution and, 15
- Human Personality and Its Survival of Bodily Death* (Myers), 126, 142, 143
- Human Physiology* (Elliotson), 73, 85, 127
- human thought, yearning of for spiritual and scientific truth, 6
- Hurley, Kelly, 206n27
- Huxley, Thomas Henry, 1–2, 7, 14, 15–16, 20, 21
- hypochondriasis: and dreamy states, 41–42; vs. insanity, 40–41; and primitive mind, imaginative escape of, 35; Victorian understanding of, 35, 40–41
- hypochondriasis in Brontë: heroines and, 35, 39–40, 50, 53, 57, 59–61, 63; Romantic-realist tension and, 35; and tension between spiritual and scientific views of mind, 35–40, 54–55, 57–60, 62–63
- imagination: Brontë on necessity of exercising, 62–63; in Dickens, hallucinatory vividness of, 66; and dreamy state, in Brontë, 47–48; and dreamy state, Romantic views on, 42–43; and dreamy state, scientific views on, 129; and hypochondriasis, in Brontë, 39–40; and hypochondriasis, research on, 40–41; nineteenth-century psychology on, 30; products of, difficulty of capturing in representations in Brontë, 63; risk of self-deception as inherent in, 113–14; and spectral encounters, 72–73; and sympathy, 94, 95; and tension between material and spiritual views in Brontë, 36, 37; and vision, 94–95. See also dreamy state
- imagination, artistic: as function of dreamy mind, 129; shaping of by social environment, Eliot on, 96–97; and sympathy, 94, 95, 96; and vision, 94–95
- imagination, literary: and scientific investigation, 6; and vision, 94–95
- imagination, scientific: deductions of vs. clairvoyance in Eliot, 103–4; dreamy state and, 1–2; and risk of self-deception, 113–14; and sympathy as driver of social progress, 94; and vision, 94–95
- Immanent Will, Hardy on, 165
- imperialist perspective: on influence of heredity and climate on racial characteristics, 51–52; and primitive mind, in Brontë, 34, 38–39, 51–52; resistance of dreamy state to, 21
- India, British interest in mesmerism in, 127
- Inquiry Concerning the Indications of Insanity* (Conolly), 40–41
- insanity, vs. hypochondriasis, 40–41
- Insomnia and Other Disorders of Sleep* (Lyman), 167
- “Introduction to the Philosophy of Consciousness” (Ferrier), 45
- “In Vision I Roamed” (Hardy), 175–76
- Isis Revelata* (Calquhoun), 126, 127
- Jackson, John Hughlings: on dissolution, 25; on dreamy state, 27, 69–70, 70–71; and “dreamy state” as term, 5; on epilepsy, 69–70; and evolutionary model of mind, 19, 24, 25; Spencer’s influence on, 71
- Jacobus, Mary, 34

- Jaffe, Audrey, 66
- James, William: and influence of Darwin, 18; on medical materialism, 10; on primitive mind, 26, 183; on religious experience, 9, 21
- Jane Eyre* (Brontë): on convention, morality outside of, 47, 49; critique of Christianity in, 35–36; on dangers of moral madness, 37; and dreamy state, as simultaneously material and spiritual, 33–34, 35–38, 46, 47, 49–55, 57–60, 62–63; dreamy state as escape from patriarchal oppression in, 34–35, 36; and dreamy state as path to God, 47, 49, 54–55; dreamy state in, as liberating experience, 34–35, 36, 43, 53, 63, 173; and mental health, effect of heredity and climate on, 44–45, 52–53; and mental health, effect of self-control on, 44–45; mental science model of mind in, 49–53; racialized view of primitive mind in, 38–39; as response to medical investigations of mind and spiritual experience, 47, 54–55; second edition, preface to, 47; spiritual focus of, 36; supernatural in, as product of mental state, 33, 49–50
- Jennings, Ezra (Moonstone character): and Eastern mysticism as inescapable twin of modern mental science, 131–32, 134; mesmeric power of, 132; primitive mind in, 122, 131, 132, 134
- Journal of Mental Science* (periodical), 20, 26
- Jude the Obscure* (Hardy), and individual entrapment within nature and culture, 154, 157
- Keighley Mechanics Institute Library, 43
- King, Katie, 10
- Kucich, John, 201n70
- Lamarck, Jean-Baptiste, 17–20, 18, 31, 97, 137
- Lancet* (periodical), 200n57
- “The Land of Mist” (Doyle), 150
- Lankester, E. Ray, 19, 123, 124–25
- Latour, Bruno, 156–57, 158
- Law, Jules, 219n18
- Lawrence, William, 52
- Laws of Man’s Nature and Development* (Martineau), 16
- Laycock, Thomas, 23
- The Leader* (periodical), 129
- Le Sage, Alain-René, 140
- Letters on the Laws of Man’s Nature and Development* (Atkinson), 54–55
- Levine, Caroline, 4
- Levine, George: on determinism in Hardy, 209n6; on evolutionary teleology underlying realism, 30; on realism, multivalence of concept, 28; on realism in Eliot, 92; on self-erasure in realist fiction, 3, 75
- Lewes, George Henry: Brontë and, 47, 62–63; Collins and, 129; and Darwinism, 18; on Dickens, 66, 91; on dreamy state, insight derived from, 27; on Eliot, 91; on evolutionary progress of human mind, 95–96, 97–98, 118–19; imperialist ideology of, 119; influence on Eliot, 118; life and career of, 15–16; on realism, 104; on religious faith in primitive minds, 118–19; Spencer’s influence on, 97–98; on spiritual conditions of social life, 102; teleological model of knowledge, 119; on theories of mind, 16; on vision of creative genius, 94–95
- The Lified Veil* (Meunier), 103, 104
- literary criticism, nineteenth-century, Victorian psychology and, 29–30
- literary imagination: and scientific investigation, 6; and vision, 94–95
- The Literature and Curiosity of Dreams* (Seafeld), 74
- Locke, John, 14
- Lombroso, Cesare, 125, 137, 144–45
- The Lost World* (Doyle), 148
- Luckhurst, Roger, 11, 16
- Lukács, György, 3
- Lyell, Charles, 13, 43, 82

- Lyman, Henry, 167, 168
- Mackay, R. W., 97
- Macnish, Robert: on mystical visions, 50; on physiological origins of trances, 111; on power of dreamy states, 29, 42–43; research on dreamy states, 41–43; on reverie, 167; on unbridled imagination, 48
- “Magnetic Evenings at Home” (Collins), 129
- The Man of Genius* (Lombroso), 144–45
- “The Man with the Twisted Lip” (Doyle), 136
- Marcus, Sharon, 38–39
- Marner, Silas: catalepsy of, and failure of narrative clairvoyance, 108–9, 114, 116, 118; catalepsy of, and narrative deanimation, 108, 117, 120; catalepsy of, as medical mystery, 108, 109, 115; catalepsy of, as metaphor for arrested social growth, 116–17, 120; deanimation of, through isolation, 116–17; as man without sympathetic attachment, 115–17, 120; as undeveloped consciousness, 107, 115–16
- Martineau, Harriet, 16, 54–55
- Mason, Bertha (Jane Eyre character): and madness, danger of, 37, 39; and mental health, effect of heredity and climate on, 44, 45, 52–53; as racial other, 38–39
- Matthew, Patrick, 52, 197n69
- Matus, Jill, 199n18
- Maudsley, Henry: on atavism, 137, 145; career of, 20; on consciousness, 24; on degeneration, 20, 123, 124; on dreamy state, 11; on insanity, 124; positivism interpretations of mental phenomena, 21; on spiritualism, 25, 124; on visions and hallucinations, 25, 169
- Mayo, Herbert, 69
- McKeon, Michael, 154
- medical practice, Victorian, discourse of the soul and, 14
- medical research. See mental science research, nineteenth-century
- Memoirs of the Reverend William Tennent* (Tennent), 109
- memory: literary imagination and, 94–95; mystical experience and, 93; overwhelming of sense by, in Our Mutual Friend, 84
- Menke, Richard, 118
- mental dissolution, in Dickens, 74
- mental health: climate and, 43–45; climate and, in Jane Eyre, 44–45, 52–53; heredity and, 43–44, 52–53; self-discipline and, 22, 43–44
- mental illness: failure of will and, 23, 41, 44; heritability of, 20; primitive mind episodes as, 34; treatment of, 23. See also degeneration, evolutionary
- Mental Maladies* (Esquirol), 22–23, 41, 43, 44, 69
- mental science: affinities with realist novels, 3; and contested site of female body, 34; Dickens’s interest in, 64–65, 69, 72–73, 78; and epilepsy, nineteenth-century interest in, 67; Victorian novels’ efforts to accommodate, 28
- mental science in Brontë: Brontë’s access to works on, 43; model of mind, in Jane Eyre, 49–53; Romantic-era, in Brontë, 46–47; tension between spiritual view of mind in, 35–40, 45–47, 54–55, 57–60, 62–63
- mental science publications, audience for, and audience for literature, 66
- mental science research, nineteenth-century: on automatism, 23–24; on environment and mental health, 43–45; on epilepsy, 69–71; evolutionary science as context for, 4–5, 20; on genius, origins of, 143–45; materialization of spiritual impulses in, 5, 8, 9, 16, 20, 21–25, 27, 93, 109–14, 125–26, 168–72; on mesmerism, 24–25, 73, 200–201n57; on primitive, unconscious mind, 21–26, 141–46; on primitive mind, potential power of, 9, 10, 25–26, 141–45; on spectral encounters, 72–73; on spiritualism, 10, 22, 73, 140–46;

- on trance phenomena, 73, 109–14, 204n48. See also evolutionary explanations of mind
- mental states, abnormal, Victorian fascination with, 11
- mesmerism: associations with ancient and Eastern medicine, 127; Brontë on, 54; Dickens and, 67, 200n55; influence on mainstream science, 11; medical applications, exploration of, 25–26; in The Moonstone, 122; nineteenth-century research on, 24–25, 73, 200–201n57; occult associations, efforts to remove, 126; occult associations, in neo-Gothic fiction, 127; in Our Mutual Friend, 84; scientific efforts to explain, 112, 125–26
- Mesmerism in India* (Esdaile), 127
- Mesmerism and Its Opponents* (Sandby), 126
- Mesmerism, Spiritualism, &c, Historically and Scientifically Considered* (Carpen-ter), 125–26, 133
- Meunier, Charles, 103, 104
- “A Microscopic Dream” (Dixon), 89
- Middlemarch* (Eliot), 20
- Miller, J. Hillis, 155
- Miller, Susan, 175
- mind: complexity of Victorian beliefs about, 12; risk of self-deception as inherent to, 113–14; understanding of, evolutionary science and, 13. See also evolutionary explanations of mind; mental science research, nineteenth-century
- Mind* (periodical), 16
- “Modern Poets and the Meaning of Life” (Myers), 172
- Modern Spiritualism* (Podmore), 170–71
- modernity: dreamy state automatism as escape from, in Hardy, 152–53, 159–67, 172–73, 173–74, 179–80; and ideology critique, Latour on, 156; separation of human and nonhuman in, 156–57
- monomania in Brontë, 193–94n6
- The Moonstone* (Collins): on crime and detection of crime, as products of primitive mind, 134; dreamy mind in, as simultaneously material and spiritual, 131–34; and Eastern mysticism, as inescapable twin of modern mental science, 131–33; Moonstone’s hypnotic power in, 132; narrator, skepticism of, 133; primitive mind in, 131; Sergeant Cuff, superior mind of, 122; and truth, unavailability of to purely scientific mind, 131
- moral meaning, evolutionary explanations of mind and, 3–4, 20, 31–32
- moral and spiritual inquiry, as complement to scientific investigation, 6
- Morel, Bénédict Augustine, 123, 124, 125, 137
- Moriarty, Professor (Doyle character), 150
- Myers, Frederick W. H.: on clairvoyance, 141–42; influence on Hardy, 172; respiritualized of hypnotism by, 126; spiritual interests of, 26, 141; on subliminal mind, 141–42, 151; on subliminal mind, power of, 143–44; on visions and hallucinations, 171–72
- Nagel, Thomas, 4
- Nancy School, 26
- narrators in Dickens: dreamy state in, 65–66, 68, 75, 79–81, 86–89; as impersonal network of overlapping events, 68, 86–89; Lewes on, 91; narrative instability of, 29
- narrators in Eliot: clairvoyance, limitations of, 103–4, 105–6; deanimation of, as product of intellectual distance from characters, 107–8, 114, 115, 118; deanimation of, catalepsy and, 108, 117, 120; early empiricism of, 91; failure of narrative clairvoyance, catalepsy and, 93, 108–9, 114, 116, 118; later intuitive and imaginative power of vision in, 91–92; Lewes on, 91; and limits of narrative acuity, testing of, 92; narrative instability in, 29; and realism, sympathy necessary for, 92; realism of, as developed form of artistic expression, 94; and social

- sympathy, activation of, 91–92; sympathetic paralysis in, 94
- narrators, first-person: as characteristic of Victorian realist novels, 2; construction of outside world through consciousness of, 2–3; and dreamy state, disruption of reality by, 3; free indirect discourse of, and revelation of emotions and anxieties, 88–89
- narrators of Victorian realist fiction: characteristics of, 2; dreamy states in, 9–10, 28–29
- Natural Causes and Supernatural Seemings* (Maudsley), 21
- natural theology, persistence of, 14–15
- naturalism: in Collins, 130; Doyle on, 138; evolutionary theory and, 28; Hardy and, 172, 174, 183; and Protestant theology, 12; sensation novels and, 30. See also evolutionary explanations of mind; realism
- nature in novels of Hardy: individual entrapment within hybrid of culture and, 153–59, 161–62; as product of unconscious creative Will, 165–66
- nervous system, nineteenth-century accounts of, 70
- The Nineteenth Century* (periodical), 172
- Nordau, Max: on cultural degeneration, 124, 128, 135, 138–39; on evolutionary degeneration, 123, 124; on genius, 143; Lombroso on, 144; on psychology of mysticism, 20, 124, 125; on realism, 128; on realist fiction, 138–39
- novels: as modern form, 154; modernist turn to self-aware narrative mode, 183; and secularization, responses to, 154. See also Victorian realist novels
- objective narrator, and readers' suspension of individual perspective, 4
- objectivity, origin of concept, 4
- Observations on Trance or Human Hibernation* (Braid), 111–13
- O'Key, Elizabeth, 67
- Oliver Twist* (Dickens), epilepsy in, 67
- On Man's Power over Himself to Control Insanity* (Barlow), 41
- "On the Natural History of Man-Like Apes" (Huxley), 1, 7
- On the Origin of Species* (Darwin), 72, 145
- "On the Relations of Man to the Lower Animals" (Hardy), 7
- The Origin of the English Novel* (McKeon), 154
- Otis, Laura, 11, 207n41
- Our Mutual Friend* (Dickens): clairvoyance in, 84; commodification in, 75; divided personalities in, 75, 85–86; doublings and substitutions in, 85; dreamy state in, 84–85, 182; dust in, and cycle of evolution/devolution, 89–90; epilepsy in, 67, 85–86; ghosts in, 83–84; ghosts in, psychological origins of, 84, 90; mental dissolution in, 74; narrator, dreamy state in, 86–89; nervous disorganization in, 90; preoccupation with death in, 201n70; scholarship on, 66; self-control in, 75
- Owen, Richard, 13, 189n48
- Owen, Robert, 74
- A Pair of Blue Eyes* (Hardy), 7
- The Pathology of Mind* (Maudsley), 123, 124
- Patmore, Coventry, 27
- Paulina (Villette character): identification with Apostle Paul, 56; rationality of, and success in life, 61–62
- Peltason, Timothy, 76
- Penfield, Wilder, 8
- "The Phantom Horsewoman" (Hardy), 177–78
- Phantoms in the Brain* (Ramachandran and Blakeslee), 93
- Phantom World* (Calmet), 73–74
- The Philosophy of Sleep* (Macnish), 29, 41–43, 50, 73, 111
- phrenology: in Brontë, 45–46, 49, 196n54; on cultivation of mental faculties, 45–46; on mind as product of brain structure, 45; moral improvement in, 14, 21; Spencer on, 71, 72–73

- The Physiology of the Mind* (Maudsley), 21
 Pick, Daniel, 123
 Pierce, Arthur, 142
 Podmore, Frank, 141, 142, 170–71
Poems of 1912–1913 (Hardy), 177
Poems of the Past and the Present (Hardy), 175, 176
 Poovey, Mary, 4, 88
 premodern world, temporary escape into, in Hardy, 159–67
 presentiments: Brontë on, 51; naturalization of in Jane Eyre, 50–52. See also clairvoyance
 Prichard, James Cowles, 23, 40, 52, 69 primitive mind: conceptualization of in evolutionary terms, 6; in Eliot, vs. exceptional mind, as theme, 93–94, 98; imaginative escape of in hypochondriasis, 35; and ongoing risk of self-deception, 114; racial overtones of, 5; scientific research on, 21–26, 141–46; as source of criminal mind, scientific research on, 144–46; spirituality as product of, 9; temporary escape into, in Hardy, 159–67. See also dreamy state; evolutionary explanations of mind primitive mind, control of by reason: in Bleak House, 75; and dreamy mind activity, 41–43; failure of, and mental illness, 23, 41, 44; failure of, in novels about degeneration, 127–28; and life success, in Brontë, 61–62; materialist vs. metaphysical accounts of, 45–46; and mental health, in Brontë, 44–45; in nineteenth-century materialist theories of mind, 21–22, 23, 24; suspension of in mesmerism, 24–25
 primitive mind, potential power of: Collins on, 129; Crichton-Browne on, 27; and mesmerism, efforts to explain, 125–26; scientific research on, 9, 10, 25–26, 141–45; Sherlock Holmes's supernatural insight and, 136, 138, 139–40, 146–49, 150–51; Victorian fascination with, 12; in Victorian realist novels, 31, 182; visions and, 168, 169–70 primitive mind, use of by detectives, 122–23; as atavism, 121, 125, 134; and clairvoyant power, 121, 123. See also Holmes, Sherlock
The Princess (Tennyson), 74
Principles of Geology (Lyell), 43, 82
Principles of Mental Physiology (Carpenter), 129
The Principles of Psychology (Spencer), 19, 28, 71, 72
Problems of Life and Mind (Lewes), 95–96, 119
The Prodigal Daughter (Thomas), 109
The Progress of the Intellect (Mackay), 97
 psychology, Victorian: and dreamy state, scientific study of, 2; and evolutionary science, impact of, 13; Freud and, 13; and literary criticism, 29–30; and novels, scholarship on, 11; and primitive mind, efforts to investigate, 26. See also mental science Quarterly Review (periodical), 43 racial science: on influence of heredity and climate on racial characteristics, 44, 45, 51–53; and primitive mind, in Brontë, 34, 38–39, 51–52; and primitive mind, racial overtones of, 5
 Ramachandran, V. S., 8, 93
 rationalism of Hardy, 172
 rationality: inability to grasp full truth through, in Collins, 131, 132, 133–34; of Sherlock Holmes as antithesis of degenerative influences, 135–36; and success in life, in Brontë, 61–62 rationality, control of primitive mind by: in Bleak House, 75; and dreamy mind activity, 41–43; failure of, and mental illness, 23, 41, 44; failure of, in novels about degeneration, 127–28; and life success, in Brontë, 61–62; materialist vs. metaphysical accounts of, 45–46; and mental health, in Brontë, 44–45; in nineteenth-century materialist theories of mind, 21–22,

- 23, 24; suspension of in mesmerism, 24–25
- realism: in age of mental science, and narrative forms that distort perception, 28–29; critiques of as symptom of cultural degeneration, 136–37, 138–39; evolutionary theories of mind and, 18; and idealism, Lewes on, 94–95; Nordau on false reality in, 128; self-erasure in, 3; sympathy necessary for, in Eliot, 92; as term, multivalence of, 28. See also naturalism; Victorian realist novel
- realism in Brontë: hypochondriasis of narrators and, 35; scholarship on, 34, 35–36; tension between Romantic elements and, 33–34, 35, 57–58
- realism of Dickens, and hallucinatory imagination, 66
- realism of Doyle: and Gothic elements, overcoming of, 136; and primitive mind, intrusion of, 136
- reality as mind-assembled abstraction, 119–20; Silas Marner and, 120
- reflex action, research on, 23–24
- “The Reflex Function of the Brain” (Laycock), 23
- Reid, John, 44–45
- Reid, Thomas, 43
- religion: Brontë on, 54–55; Eliot on, 97; and human development, 6–7, 12, 97; materialist explanations of mind and, 5, 8, 9, 16, 20, 21–25, 27, 93, 109–14, 125–26, 168–72; as product of primitive mind, 9. See also dreamy state, as simultaneously material and spiritual; soul; spiritualism
- reproductive success, rationality and, in Brontë, 61–62
- Researches into the Physical History of Man* (Prichard), 51–52
- The Return of the Native* (Hardy): dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern in, 159, 162–65, 182; and history and nature, individual entrapment within, 154, 162–65, 166–67, 174; narrative instability in, 29
- reverie and visions, scientific study of, 167–72
- Richardson, Samuel, 18
- Robe, James, 110
- Robinson Crusoe* (Defoe), 133–34
- Robinson, Marilynne, 9, 13
- A Romance of Two Worlds* (Corelli), 173
- Royle, Nicholas, 98
- Ryan, Vanessa, 186n7
- Rylance, Rick, 14
- Sandby, George, 126
- Satires of Circumstance* (Hardy), 177
- Scarry, Elaine, 219n19
- Schaffer, Simon, 156
- Schmitt, Cannon, 145
- Science and a Future Life* (Myers), 171
- science, Victorian: fascination with abnormal mental states, 11; and spiritual life, as issue, 6–7, 11. See also entries under mental science
- scientific imagination: deductions of vs. clairvoyance in Eliot, 103–4; dreamy state and, 1–2; and risk of self-deception, 113–14; and sympathy as driver of social progress, 94; and vision, 94–95
- scientific method, as trained common sense, 113
- scientific positivism, rejection of subjective experience, 9
- scientific thought, as antidote to degeneration, 124–25
- Scott, Walter, 7, 8, 27
- Seafeld, Frank, 74
- second sight. See clairvoyance
- Seitler, Dana, 205n11
- self: Damasio on characteristics of, 181–82; higher, Myers on possibility of, 171–72
- self-control: in Bleak House, 75; and dreamy mind activity, 41–43; failure of, and mental illness, 23, 41, 44; failure of, in novels about degeneration, 127–28; and life success, in Brontë, 61–62; materialist vs. metaphysical accounts of, 45–46; and mental health, in Brontë, 44–45; in nineteenth-century materialist theories of mind,

- 21–22, 23, 24; suspension of in mesmerism, 24–25
- self-deception: and mesmerism, scientific explanations of, 125–26; risk of, as inherent to mind, 113–14
- “Self-Unconscious” (Hardy), 177
- “The Self-Unseeing” (Hardy), 175
- sensation novels, focus on primitive mind in, 30
- Shapin, Steven, 156
- Shuttleworth, Sally, 11, 34, 35, 45–46, 92, 108, 193–94n6
- “The Sick Battle God” (Hardy), 176
- Sidgwick, Henry, 141
- Silas Marner* (Eliot): catalepsy in, 92; contrast between exceptional and primitive minds as theme in, 94; deanimation of Marner through isolation in, 115–17; Eliot on writing of, 107–8; and failure of narrative clairvoyance, 93, 108–9, 114, 116, 118; impossibility of significant emotional growth in, 109, 114–15; as medical mystery, 108, 109, 115; as metaphor for arrested social growth, 116–17, 120; narrative deanimation in, as product of intellectual distance from characters, 107–8, 114, 115, 118; naturalization of miracle and mystery in, 117–18; and reality as abstraction assembled by higher mind, 120; scholarship on dismantled identities in, 92; as story about undeveloped consciousness incapable of vision, 107, 115–16
- “Silly Novels by Lady Novelists” (Eliot), 96
- “The Sleep Worker” (Hardy), 175
- Smajic, Srdjan, 136
- Smith, Hélène, 173
- Snow, C. P., 16
- Snowe, Lucy (Villette character): descent of into necromantic fancy, 57–58; dreamy episodes of, 56–57, 195n25; as evidence of developmental inferiority, 62; hypochondriasis of, 35, 39–40, 57, 59–61, 63; identification of with Apostle Paul, 55–56; isolation of, 55, 57, 61; as liberating experience, 43, 63, 173; movement away from God, 56, 57–58; as narrator, and dual consciousness of hypochondriasis, 59–61; and primitive mind, exhibitions of, 34; psychological instability of, 33, 37–38; Romantic-era mental science and, 46–47; and tension between Gothic and realist genres, 57–58; and tension between religious and scientific views of primitive mind, 36–37, 57–60; withholding of information by, 38
- social dissolution. See cultural degeneration
- social progress, sympathy as driver of, 94, 95–96
- Social Statics* (Spencer), 71–72
- Société medico psychologique, 169
- Society for Psychical Research (SPR), 126, 137, 140–41, 170–72
- somnambulism: in Hardy, 160–61, 167–68; studies of, 23, 24, 25, 54, 126, 167
- soul: Collins on, 129; discourse of, Victorian medical practice and, 14; dreamy state as revelation of, 20; efforts to restore to evolutionary explanations of mind, 16–20
- “The Speckled Band” (Doyle), 136
- spectral encounters, nineteenth-century research on, 72–73
- Spencer, Herbert: associates of, 15–16; on consciousness, 19, 28; Dickens’s views on, 72; on evolution and dissolution of mental faculties, 16, 18, 19, 71–72; influence of, 19, 71, 97–98; on memory, overwhelming of sense by, 84; phrenological studies, 71, 72–73
- spiritual events, definition and types of, 10
- spiritual significance attached to dreamy state, in Victorian literature, 8
- spiritualism: definition of, 10; Dickens’s familiarity with, 67, 73–74; medical investigations of, 10; nineteenth-century research on, 22, 73, 140–46; as symptom of degeneration, 124; Victorian attitudes toward, 10
- Stevenson, Robert Louis, 127

- Steward, Dugald, 43
 Stoker, Bram. See Dracula (Stoker)
A Study in Scarlet (Doyle), 135, 136, 147
 subliminal mind. See unconscious mind
 Sully, James, 26, 32
 Summerson, Esther (Bleak House character): closing remark of, 83; dreamy mind in, 75–78, 82–83; self-control of, and identity, 75, 76, 78, 82–83
 Symonds, John Addington, 7–8, 24, 25 sympathy: and artistic genius, 94–95; and clairvoyance, 110–11; as driver of social progress, 94, 95–96 sympathy in Eliot: catalepsy as inverse of, 92, 94, 114, 120; as characteristic of higher human life, 98, 120; as characteristic of narrators, 91–92; as driver of social progress, 94; as nourisher of artistic creativity, 96; as source of realism, 99; as source of spiritual phenomena, 91, 92, 100
- Talbot, Eugene, 123, 137
 Taves, Ann, 110
 Taylor, James, 54
 Taylor, Jenny Bourne, 11, 130
 Tennyson, Alfred, 7, 8, 27, 74, 172
Tess of the d'Urbervilles (Hardy): “ache of modernism” in, 155; dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern in, 159–62, 173, 179–80, 182, 219n16; and entrapment of characters in history, nature, and culture, 154, 174; narrative instability in, 29; primitive mind in, 30, 182
 “A Theory Concerning the Organ of Wonder” (Spencer), 72–73
 Thurschwell, Pamela, 101
 Todd, Robert Bentley, 69
 Toker, Leona, 92, 104–5
 Tougaw, Jason, 3, 39
 Townshend, Chauncy, 72, 126, 200n55
 trance phenomena, research and published accounts on, 73, 109–14, 204n48. See also catalepsy; mesmerism
A Treatise Concerning Enthusiasme (Casaubon), 110–11
A Treatise on Insanity (Prichard), 23, 40, 53–54
Treatise on Spirits, Apparitions, Witchcraft and Other Magical Practices (Beaumont), 73
Trilby (Du Maurier), 127, 128
 Tuke, Daniel Hack, 24, 25, 167
 Tyndall, John, 6–7
- “The Uncommercial Traveller” (Dickens), 78–79
 unconscious mind: dreamy mind as window to, 2; Freud and, 13; scientific research on, 23–24, 141–46. See also primitive mind undeveloped consciousness: characteristics of, 107; Silas Marner as story about, 107, 115–16
- Varieties of Religious Experience* (James), 21
 “Various Trials of the Clairvoyance of Alexis Didier” (Elliotson), 73
 Vashti (Villette character), 57–58
 Venn, Diggory (Return of the Native character), 164–65
Vestiges of the Natural History of Creation (Chambers), 15, 45, 81–82
 Victorian realist novels: affinities with mental science, 3; and evolutionary explanations of mind, 15–16, 20; first-person or omniscient narrators as characteristic of, 2; and mental science, efforts to accommodate, 28; modernity of, 2; narrators, dreamy states in, 9–10, 28–29; nondeliberative thought in, 186n7; and primitive mind, potential power of, 31, 182; as product of scientific culture, 2; testing of limits of realism in, 28. See also dreamy state in Victorian realist novels
Villette (Brontë): critique of Christianity in, 35–36; on dangers of moral madness, 37–38; and evolutionary vs. metaphysical accounts of mind, 46; narrative instability in, 28; spiritual feelings as escape from patriarchal

- oppression in, 34–35, 36; supernatural in, as product of mental state, 33; tension between Romantic and realist elements in, 33–34, 35, 57–58; tension between spiritual and scientific views of primitive mind in, 35–38, 57–60, 62–63
- vision of creative genius, Lewes on, 94–95
- visions and hallucinations: in Hardy's poetry, 175–80; loosening of thought into, in Eliot, 92; scientific study of, 167–72. See also clairvoyance
- “The Voice” (Hardy), 178–79
- The Voyage of the Beagle* (Darwin), 145
- Vrettos, Athena, 11
- Vye, Eustacia (Return of the Native character): and dreamy state, intersection with folklore and magic, 163; and dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern, 162–63, 179; and entrapment of characters in history, nature, and culture, 155, 157, 166–67; instinctive revolt against circumstances of life in, 173; Mummer play performance of, 166–67
- Wakely, Thomas, 200n57
- Wallace, Alfred Russell, 10, 12, 93, 141, 142, 171
- Watson, Dr. (Doyle character): moments of doubt and distress in, 138; as product of degenerate age, 135
- We Have Never Been Modern* (Latour), 156–57
- “Well Authenticated Rappings” (Dickens), 64
- Wesley, John, 110
- Westminster Review* (periodical), 72
- “When Thou Sleepest” (Brontë), 37
- “When the World Screamed” (Doyle), 148
- Whitefield, George, 110
- Wildevé, Damon (Return of the Native character), 164
- will: in Bleak House, 75; and dreamy mind activity, 41–43; failure of, and mental illness, 23, 41, 44; failure of, in novels about degeneration, 127–28; and life success, in Brontë, 61–62; materialist vs. metaphysical accounts of, 45–46; and mental health, in Brontë, 44–45; in nineteenth-century materialist theories of mind, 21–22, 23, 24; suspension of in mesmerism, 24–25
- Wilson, E. O., 28
- Winter, Alison, 11, 127, 200–201n57
- The Woman in White* (Collins), 130–31
- women, and dreamy mind as escape from patriarchal oppression, in Brontë, 34–35, 36, 37, 43
- Wood, Jane, 11
- Wordsworth, William, and dreamy state, 27, 129
- Yeobright, Clym (Return of Native character): and dreamy state automatism as escape from the modern, 159, 163–64, 173, 179; and history, nature and culture, individual entrapment within, 155, 158; resignation of to modern world, 174
- Young, Kay, 182, 219n16
- The Zoist* (periodical), 72, 73, 126
- Zoonomia* (Darwin), 46