

PROJECT MUSE®

Time for Harvest

Mukabi Kabira

Published by African Books Collective

Kabira, Mukabi.

Time for Harvest: Women and Constitution Making in Kenya.

African Books Collective, 2012.

Project MUSE.muse.jhu.edu/book/39992.

➔ For additional information about this book

<https://muse.jhu.edu/book/39992>

Table of Contents

Dedication.....	v
List of Photographs.....	xi
List of Maps.....	xvii
Foreword.....	xix
Acknowledgements.....	xxvii
Acronyms.....	xxxix
Introduction: The Nurturers and Silent Gardeners	1

Part 1: The Path Travelled 11

Chapter 1: Clearing the Fields: Background and Context of Women’s Struggle 13

Kenya Women’s Movement: a brief background	13
United Nations Women’s Decade and the Kenya Women’s Movement	15
Women’s focus since 1992.....	16
Why 1992 is significant.....	17
The National Women’s Convention, 1992	19
Hon. Phoebe Asiyo motion, 1997.....	20
The beginning of a national women’s political movement	25
Formation of the Affirmative Action Steering Committee.....	26
Introducing Affirmative Action Bill 2000.....	28

Chapter 2: Negotiating for Space in the Constitutional Review Process 31

Women at the negotiation process.....	32
Constitutional review stakeholders consultation at Bomas (May 11 th 1998).....	32
Women and the Constitution Review Law 1998/1999.....	34
The battle for control of the selection of women commissioners	37
Women’s nominations of the five women commissioners (1999).....	39
Mrs Zipporah Kittony’s troubles with KANU.....	41
Women’s day in court over the nomination of women commissioners	42
Women’s shuttle diplomacy and the stalled review process	43
Women’s consultations with political party leaders.....	43
Women’s consultations with religious leaders	44
Women and the people driven process	45

Ufungamano and the People’s Commission 1999/2000.....	46
Women commissioners in PCK and consultations with KANU	48
The women commissioners and CKRC 2000-2005.....	49
Consulting the veterans	52
Twists and turns of the review process at the CKRC	54
Chapter 3: The National Constitutional Conference	57
Women at the National Constitutional Conference	57
Women’s efforts to safeguard their gains in 2004/2005	59
The multi-sectoral forum – 2006	63
The famous 50 Seats Bill.....	64
Women’s march for the 50 seats	66
Women’s one million signatures for 50 seats.....	67
Women petition parliament	67
The 2010 harmonised draft and the referendum.....	68
Pictorial I.....	71
Part 2: Women’s Voices	89
Chapter 4: Women’s Voices from the Provinces	91
Introduction	91
How women spoke during the public hearings	94
Section 1: Voices from Nyanza Province	100
Section 2: Voices from Western Province	112
Section 3: Voices from North Eastern Province	119
Section 4: Voices from Nairobi Province.....	130
Section 5: Voices from Rift Valley Province.....	138
Section 6: Voices from Eastern Province	160
Section 7: Voices from Central Province	169
Section 8: Voices from Coast Province	180
Chapter 5: Women’s Organisations and Women in Academia..	195
Introduction	195
Voices from national women’s organisations	195
Voices from women in academia	205
Pictorial II.....	213

Part 3: Negotiating the Double Covenant.....221

Chapter 6: Women’s Negotiations at Bomas National Constitutional Conference (2003-2004) 223

Introduction223
 Preparation of the CKRC draft and national constitutional conference.....223
 Validating the process224
 Reconvening of the Bomas Constitutional Conference226
 Women delegates227
 Women’s lobbying and negotiating strategies at Bomas229
 Women’s focus on critical committees at the National Constitutional
 Conference.....231
 Women and representation at the National Constitutional Conference232
 Women in the Committee on Representation of the People232
 Devolution of power, the most contested concept and structures236
 Women’s negotiations in the Devolution Committee241
 In pursuit of the Gender Commission.....248
 Remaining accountable to women and monitoring progress at the Bomas
 Conference.....248
 Keeping their eyes on the goal249
 The basket of fruits from the Bomas negotiations.....253

Chapter 7: 2005 Referendum: A Dream Deferred 261

Introduction261
 On referendum.....261
 Women’s response to the referendum results263

Chapter 8: The First Season of Harvest 273

Introduction273
 Negotiating the contested issues and the 2010 Constitution273
 Women’s presentation to the Committee of Experts275
 The 2010 referendum284
 2011: Remaining vigilant even as we celebrate the first season of harvest.....287
 Pictorial III.....297

Part 4: Reflections	311
Chapter 9: Women, Ethnicity and Constitution Making	313
Ethnicity.....	313
Ethnicity and the 2005 referendum	316
Women, ethnicity and the debate on devolution of powers	319
Ethnicity and regions	319
Women, power and ethnicity	321
Women, culture, ideology and ethnicity.....	323
Myth, myth making and ideology	325
Ethnicity and women’s representation.....	326
Ethnicity and voting at the 2005 referendum.....	328
Stereotyping women and ethnic ideology.....	329
Creating a new ideology and new institutions	332
Chapter 10: Women’s Strategic Choices	337
Introduction	337
Affirmative action: the critical unifying factor	338
Why the struggle for affirmative action	339
Working with political parties.....	350
Chapter 11: Emerging from the Shadows	357
Introduction	357
Naming the problems of women.....	358
Chapter 12: Conclusion	375
Part 5: Appendices	381
Appendix I: List of women mentioned in this book	383
Appendix II: List of women delegates at Bomas.....	391
Appendix III: CKRC Commissioners.....	397
Appendix IV: Committee of Experts Commissioner (CoE)	398
Appendix V: List of constituencies referred to in the analysis	398
Appendix VI: Memorandum from the women of Kenya on the PSC Draft Constitution of Kenya (2010).....	399
Appendix VII: Petition	403
Appendix VIII: Amendment Bill, 2011	406
Bibliography	411
Index	417