Statement of Copyright Policy

The 1976 copyright law protects against multiple photocopying by libraries, instructors, and copy centers. According to this law, photocopies in excess of "fair use" copying cannot be made without authorization by the copyright owner. "Fair use" means single copying for personal use. However, the JHP also authorizes personal or educational multiple copying by instructors for use within a course. This policy does not cover photocopying for commercial use either by individuals or publishers. All such uses must be authorized by the JHP; requests for permission should be directed to Johns Hopkins University Press.
