Membership of the Society for French Studies

The subscription fee in 2021 is £55 (£77) with a reduced rate of £27.50 (£39) for postgraduate students, new lecturers in their first three years of employment, retired members, and members not in full-time employment. Subscriptions run for the calendar year, not the academic year. Members joining the Society in mid-year receive all numbers of French Studies and the French Studies Bulletin already published in that year. Enquiries about the application for personal membership should be addressed to the Membership Secretary, membership@sfs.ac.uk.

Correspondence on all matters concerning the Society’s activities should be addressed to the Secretary of the Society, Professor Edward Welch, School of Language and Literature, University of Aberdeen, King’s College, Aberdeen AB24 3UB.

Notes for Contributors

French Studies publishes articles and reviews spanning all of the subject, including language and linguistics (historical and contemporary), all periods and aspects of literature in France and the French-speaking world, thought and the history of ideas, cultural studies, film, and critical theory. Full information on the journal and on the range of online services available to readers is available at https://academic.oup.com/fs.

Articles are published in English or in French. The journal aims in particular to publish articles which, in addition to making a contribution to a specialized area of knowledge, will be likely to have notable impact on wider critical debate. The journal is open to interdisciplinary or other submissions which explore innovative critical approaches. Articles submitted for publication will be assessed according to their originality and the importance of the contribution which they make, and their appeal to the interests of a wide international readership. In considering articles for publication, the Editors will consult with independent expert readers. A decision about publication will normally be reached within a period of three to four months. Revisions may be required of articles that are accepted.

Articles should not be more than 9000 words in length, including notes. Before sending your article to us, please carefully check the style and presentation indicated in the ‘Style Notes for Articles’ http://www.oxfordjournals.org/our_journals/frestu/for_authors/frenchstudiesstylenotesarticles.pdf, otherwise it may be returned with a request for you to do so before we can consider it. Our house style is the MHR-A Style Guide, which can be downloaded free from www.mhra.org.uk. You are requested to ensure that the text submitted is clear, correct, and definitive; authors’ changes may not as a rule be made at proof stage.

Articles to be considered for publication should be submitted to the French Studies online submission site http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/frestu. Authors will need to register on the site the first time they use it. Should you have any queries about online submission, please contact Paula Potter at fs.articles.editorialoffice@oup.com.

Authors of shorter articles (1200 words or less) may wish to consider submitting them to a sister publication, French Studies Bulletin: A Quarterly Supplement. Submissions should be sent (as soon as possible where topicality is of the essence) to Dr Kevin Inston, School of European Languages, Culture & Society, University College London, London, 33-35 Torrington Place, London WC1E 7LA (email: k.inston@ucl.ac.uk).

Books submitted for review should be sent to The Editors, Reviews, French Studies, 41 Wellington Square, Oxford OX1 2JF, UK. (Please do NOT send books to individual editors.)

Abstracting/Indexing Services

Copyright

It is a condition of publication in the Journal that the authors grant an exclusive licence to the Society for French Studies through Oxford University Press. This ensures that requests from third parties to reproduce articles are handled efficiently and consistently and will also allow the article to be as widely disseminated as possible. As part of the licence agreement, authors may use their own material in other publications provided that the Journal is acknowledged as the original place of publication, and Oxford University Press as the Publisher.

The Society for French Studies is charity no. 1078038 and is a company, limited by guarantee, registered in England and Wales, no. 3801778, whose registered office is The Taylor Institution, Oxford OX1 3NA.