Rhetoric & Public Affairs is an interdisciplinary journal devoted to the history, theory, and criticism of public discourse. Traditional arenas of rhetorical investigation include executive leadership, diplomacy, political campaigns, judicial and legislative deliberations, and public policy debate. Critical, analytical, or interpretive essays that examine particular instances of symbolic inducement in any historical period are welcome. Of special interest are manuscripts that explore the nexus of rhetoric, politics, and ethics—the worlds of persuasion, power, and social values as they meet in the crucible of public debate and deliberation.

MANUSCRIPT PREPARATION AND SUBMISSION

Submit all manuscripts as email attachments in Microsoft Word. Send original submissions to Martin J. Medhurst at martin.medhurst@baylor.edu. Manuscripts prepared according to any standard style sheet will be reviewed. However, all manuscripts accepted for publication must be brought into conformity with The Chicago Manual of Style, and follow the “documentary endnote” reference style (see chapters 16 and 17). The entire manuscript should be double-spaced, using standard margins on all sides and numbering pages consecutively. Do not use underscores to indicate italics; italicize desired text. For additional submission instructions, go to www.msupress.org/journals/rpa.

IMAGES & DERIVATIVE MATERIALS: It is the author/researcher’s obligation and responsibility to determine and satisfy copyright and/or other use restrictions prior to submitting materials to MSU Press for publication. We cannot publish such materials until clearance is obtained. Citations, permissions, and captions are required upon submission for all images, including those derived from the Internet. Electronic files accepted; all images must be minimum 300 dpi at planned publication size.

ENDNOTES: Double-space, beginning on a separate page following the last page of text. Endnotes should be numbered consecutively; these numbers must correspond to those in the text. Do not use the automatic footnote feature available on most computer software programs. Endnote style for all manuscripts accepted for publication follows The Chicago Manual of Style.

Examples

Subsequent shortened citations should read as follows (do not use Ibid.):

Campbell and Jamieson, Deeds Done in Words, 10.

All manuscripts submitted for publication consideration must be original work that has not been published previously and is not currently under review by any other publication outlet.
