The Victorian Periodicals Review is published quarterly by the Department of English, South Dakota State University. The journal is dedicated to the study of Victorian periodicals and related literature. It features articles, reviews, and discussions on a wide range of topics related to Victorian periodicals and culture.

The Editorial Board includes a diverse group of scholars from various institutions worldwide, representing different fields such as English, History, Art History, and Print Culture. This diversity ensures a comprehensive range of perspectives and expertise in the journal's content.

Editorial staff includes Katherine Malone, Associate Professor of English at South Dakota State University, as the Editor. The Associate Editor for Book Reviews is Laura Vorachek, Associate Professor of English at the University of Dayton. Editorial Assistants include Emma Kuitunen, Hannah L. LeMair, and Daniel Spangler, all from South Dakota State University.

The Victorian Periodicals Review invites submissions on Victorian periodicals and related literature. It welcomes articles, reviews, and other contributions that advance the understanding of this important cultural and historical period.