Hume Studies

Hume Studies is an interdisciplinary scholarly journal dedicated to publishing important work bearing on the thought of David Hume. The journal is receptive to a wide variety of topics, methods, and approaches, so long as the work contributes to the understanding of Hume's thought, meets the highest standards of scholarship, and demonstrates mastery of the relevant scholarly literature. Hume Studies is published by the Hume Society in April and November. For more information on joining the Hume Society, please visit www.humesociety.org.

See Volume 19, Number 2 (November 1993), for the index to past issues from 1986–1993, and subsequent November issues for yearly indexes.

Notes to Contributors

The editors welcome original analyses or interpretations of Hume’s writings and original research concerning any aspect of Hume’s life, influences, intellectual milieu, or reception. We actively solicit work concerning Hume’s contributions to, or influences on, any field, including philosophy, history, politics, economics, psychology, and anthropology and particularly welcome work that explores or sheds light on the contemporary relevance of Hume’s contributions and influences.

All submissions should be double-spaced, prepared for anonymous review, and accompanied by a brief abstract. Word or Rich Text Format are preferred. Papers should normally be in English, but please contact the editors for submissions in other languages. Quotations from Hume’s Treatise, Enquiries, Dissertation on the Passions, and The Natural History of Religion should be cited by section and paragraph number, and based on the Clarendon Edition texts. Page references for the Selby-Bigge and Nidditch editions of the Treatise and Enquiries should also be provided. For details, see http://www.humestudies.org/notes.htm.

Authors are responsible for accurate quotations and should not modify punctuation or spelling. Authors of accepted articles will receive a journal style sheet and instructions for electronic submission of the final version. Page proofs will require immediate review; author changes will not be accepted at this stage.

Submissions should be made online at the portal: http://console.humestudies.org/ojs/index.php/hs/about/submissions (registration is required). For help, please email submissions@humestudies.org. Paper correspondence (if necessary) may go to:
