

RHETORIC OF HEALTH & MEDICINE

EDITORS

Cathryn Molloy Kim Hensley Owens
James Madison University Northern Arizona University

FOUNDING EMERITUS EDITORS

Lisa Melonçon J. Blake Scott
University of South Florida University of Central Florida

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Cynthia Ryan
University of Alabama at Birmingham

ASSISTANT EDITORS

Molly Kessler
University of Minnesota

Amy Reed
Rowan University

Fernando Sánchez
University of St. Thomas

Bryna Siegel-Finer
Indiana University of Pennsylvania: Lead
Assistant Editor

Brittany Smart
University of Louisville

Erin Trauth
High Point University:
Special marketing content

REVIEWS EDITOR

G. Edzordzi Agbozo
University of North Carolina Wilmington

EDITORIAL BOARD

Mono Brown
Langara College

Jeffrey Bennett
Vanderbilt University

Kristin Marie Bivens
Harold Washington College

Darlene K. Drummond
Dartmouth

Lucía Durá
University of Texas, El Paso

Colleen Derkatch
Ryerson University

Avery Edenfield
Utah State University

Scott Graham
University of Texas, Austin

David Gruber
University of Nevada,
Las Vegas

Dr. Barbara Heifferon
Louisiana State University

Jordynn Jack
University of North
Carolina-Chapel Hill

Robin Jensen
University of Utah

Jenell Johnson
University of Wisconsin-Madison

Lisa Keränen
University of Colorado-Denver

Amy Koerber
Texas Tech University

Rebecca Kuehl
South Dakota State
University

Joan Leach
Australian National University

John Lynch
University of Cincinnati

Michael Mackert
University of Texas

J. Fred Reynolds
City College New York,
emeritus

Raquel M. Robvais
Louisiana State
University

Rebecca de Souza
University of Minnesota,
Duluth

Judy Segal
University of British Columbia

Nathan Stormer
University of Maine

Christa Teston
Ohio State University

Rhetoric of Health & Medicine (RHM) is a multidisciplinary journal publishing original rhetorical studies (e.g., studies that use theories of rhetoric or persuasion) of health and medical practices involving communication. By rhetorical studies, we mean work that entails more than examining the language or discourse involved in health and medical issues, but that also uses theories of rhetoric to guide inquiry and arrive at nuanced observations about how persuasion works (or could/should work) in discourse and practice. Such studies can combine rhetorical analysis with any number of other humanistic or social scientific methodologies, including critical/cultural analysis, ethnography, qualitative analysis, and quantitative analysis; indeed, RHM seeks to encourage scholarly conversations about health and medicine across fields of inquiry and spheres of practice, in part by publishing inter- and trans-disciplinary research.

Additionally, RHM seeks to contribute to understandings of a broad array of health and medical practices, including but not limited to the history of medicine, patient-provider communication, patient advocacy, patient accessibility, health literacy, public health campaigns, public health policymaking, drug development and marketing, medical training, visual and multimodal communication, medical ethics, environmental health, health and medical technologies, international and intercultural health, health disparities, and eHealth. Articles published in RHM foreground insights about health, illness, healing, and wellness and theoretical and/or methodological contributions to rhetorically studying these phenomena.

In addition to research articles, RHM publishes dialogues, review essays, and overviews of rhetorical research for health policymakers, practitioners, and publics.

Submissions: Manuscripts should be submitted to the Rhetoric of Health & Medicine submission website: <http://journals.upress.ufl.edu/rhm>. Please visit the website for additional information, including submission instructions.

Subscriptions: Rhetoric of Health & Medicine is published quarterly by the University of Florida Press, 2046 NE Waldo Road, Suite 2100, Gainesville, FL 32609, phone 352-392-1351.

ISSN 2573-5055 (print)
ISSN 2573-5063 (online)

University of Florida Press Journals are distributed by Johns Hopkins University Press. For subscription information and queries, please contact the Johns Hopkins University Press, P.O. Box 19966, Baltimore, MD 21211, phone 1-800-548-1784, jrnlcirc@press.jhu.edu

Advertising: Contact the University of Florida Press at journals@upress.ufl.edu to discuss advertising options.