Middle East Institute

For more than 75 years, those with an interest in the Middle East — in the United States and abroad — have joined the Middle East Institute, attracted by its aim of fostering American understanding of the region and by its objective position on the controversies of the area. In addition to a subscription to The Middle East Journal, membership entitles an individual to a number of other unique benefits. The Institute welcomes your membership application and/or contribution to further its work.
