

Vol. 46 No. 2 The Michigan Historical Review Fall 2020

The Michigan Historical Review (ISSN 0890-1686) is published semiannually by the Department of History at Central Michigan University. The following partners have joined to support the tradition of scholarly publication in Michigan history:

The Historical Society of Michigan
Bentley Historical Library (University of Michigan)

The Michigan Historical Review publishes articles related to Michigan's political, economic, social, and cultural history. It welcomes manuscripts in American, Canadian, and transnational history that explore important themes related to Michigan's past.

Full-length articles receive a double-blind peer review; research notes and documents are reviewed in-house. Articles may be submitted electronically to the email address below (suggested length 12-15,000 words, double spaced, footnotes). The journal uses the Chicago Manual of Style, 17th edition, in most matters of style. Articles are abstracted and indexed in America: History and Life, Current Contents, International Bibliography of Periodical Literature, International Bibliography of Book Reviews, and JSTOR.

All manuscripts, inquiries regarding advertisements, and other correspondence should be sent to mihisrev@cmich.edu.

Print subscriptions are $21.00 for individuals ($26.00 foreign) and $34.00 for institutions ($39.00 foreign). For more information, or to subscribe, see the journal's website at www.cmich.edu/mhr.

Electronic individual and institutional subscriptions are available through JSTOR. For electronic or print-plus-electronic subscriptions, please email participation@jstor.org or call 877.786.7575 or 212.358.6400.

The Michigan Historical Review is not responsible for statements of fact or opinion made by its contributors.

Copyright ©2020 by Central Michigan University.

On the Cover:

A Lindbergh kidnapping wanted poster from March 11, 1932

Source: Library of Congress