Conceptions of Chinese Democracy

Lorenzo, David J.

Published by Johns Hopkins University Press

Lorenzo, David J.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/49240

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=1911229

All photos are courtesy of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Republic of China (ROC), Taiwan.

There are numerous institutions and individuals that have made this book possible: I wish to acknowledge a research grant from the Ministry of Education of the Republic of China that funded a trip to Taipei in the spring of 2008. Additional research and writing resources were provided by a Research and Teaching Grant from the National Science Council of the Republic of China (for a visiting appointment in the Department of Diplomacy at National Chengchi University in Taipei) and the Batten Endowed Teaching Fund at Virginia Wesleyan College. A grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities allowed my attendance at the NEH Summer Institute “The Ideal and the Real: Arcs of Change in Chinese Culture,” held at the East-West Center, University of Hawaii, Manoa, in the summer of 2007.

I have used materials made available through the generosity of the following: libraries at the Government Information Office (GIO) of the Republic of China, Taiwan; the National Chengchi University; the University of Hawaii, Manoa; Virginia Wesleyan College; and the National Central Library, Republic of China. In particular, I would like to thank Dean Chung-chian Teng of the College of International Affairs and Ren-rang Chyou, chair of the Department of Diplomacy, for their support at National Chengchi University (NCCU) and Dean Teng for support in obtaining the National Science Council grant. I also gained valuable insights at the International Conference on Democracy in Taiwan and East Asia in Global Perspective, held in Taipei on August 24–25, 2011, sponsored by the Ministry of the Interior, ROC, and the International Forum for Democratic Studies of the National Endowment for Democracy.

Acknowledgments
My thanks also for important support from Philip Shi, Virginia Sheng, Felix Wang, and Vance Chang (who also provided valuable research assistance) of GIO; Valencia Cheng, Department of Diplomacy, NCCU; and my research assistants, Tracy Huang and JoJo Chang at NCCU. My thanks also to Suzanne Flinchbaugh of the Johns Hopkins University Press for her editorial assistance.

For valuable discussions and correspondence regarding democracy; the philosophy of Sun Yat-sen, Chiang Kai-shek, and Chiang Ching-kuo; politics in Taiwan; and Chinese culture and philosophy in general, I am grateful to Roger Ames, University of Hawaii, Manoa; Thomas Bellows, University of Texas at San Antonio and editor of the American Journal of Chinese Studies; John Copper, Rhodes College; Chao Chin-min, deputy minister, Mainland Affairs Council, ROC; Ambassador Stephen Chen, National Policy Foundation, ROC; Bruce Gilley, Portland State University; Szu-yin Ho, National Chengchi University and director, Department of Overseas Affairs, Central Committee of the Kuomintang Party; Jennifer Hu, director-general, Tainan City Government Civil Affairs Bureau; Chih-cheng Lo, member of the executive committee, Taiwan Thinktank; Wen-cheng Lin, CEO of Taiwan Foundation for Democracy; Benjamin Reilly, Johns Hopkins University; Shelley Rigger, Davidson College; Hans Stockton, University of St. Thomas; Dean Wan-chin Tai, Tamkang University, Taipei; Raymond R. K. Wu, Fu Jen Catholic University, Taipei; Flora Wang, Taipei Times; and Vincent Wang, University of Richmond.

Finally, my deepest appreciation to my wife, Lishan, who provided endless and tireless support and without whom this project would not have been possible.

Note on Translations

All quotations from documents published by the Government Information Office of the Republic of China are the products of official government translations. Materials taken from other publications have been translated by the authors or editors of those publications. In the case of materials taken from websites, the translations are those of the authors, the website hosts, or Lishan Chang. Some of these translations were also checked by Vance Chang and Lishan Chang.
Conceptions of Chinese Democracy
This page intentionally left blank