Acknowledgements

I wish to acknowledge the support of many people and institutions that made possible the completion of this book, the research for which began with a visit to Pueblo, Colorado in 1997. The research was funded by a variety of sources including the Faculty of Economics and Business, now the School of Business, at the University of Sydney, two grants from the Australian Research Council, and the Rockefeller Archives Center. The Department of History at Georgetown University kindly provided me with the facilities to continue my research when I was in Washington in 2011. I would also like to thank the generous assistance of the staffs of the Archives of Labor and Urban Affairs at Wayne State University, Borthwick Institute for Archives in York, Beaton Institute at Cape Breton University, the Baltimore & Ohio Museum, the Canberra office of the National Archives of Australia, the Colorado Historical Society, the Historisches Archiv Krupp, the Noel Butlin Archives Centre at the Australian National University, the Bessemer Historical Society/Steelworks Center of the West, the Modern Records Centre at Warwick University, the Friedrich Ebert Stiftung in Bonn, the Department of Labor Library in Washington, DC, the Archives of the International Labour Organisation in Geneva, the Manuscripts Division of the Library of Congress, the British Library, the Bundesarchiv in Berlin, the Siemens Archive, Provincial Archives of Nova Scotia at Halifax, the State Library of NSW, the Tasmanian Archive in Hobart, the Manuscripts Library of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, Pennsylvania State University Libraries Labor Archives, the Labour Movement Archives and Library in Stockholm, the National Archives and Library of Canada, the Rockefeller Archives Center, the University of Colorado at Boulder Archives and the Public Records Office at Kew. I would also like to thank especially the following people for their advice, support and encouragement: Greg Kealey, Neville Kirk, Leon Fink, Joe McCartin, Jonathan Rees, Ray Markey, George Strauss, David Brody, Nikola Balnave, Jim Kitay,
John Shields, Merrilyn Bryce, Melissa Kerr, Troy Sarina and Harry Knowles. I would like to thank particularly Yasmin Rittau, who was my research assistant when I was undertaking the research with an ARC Discovery Grant in 2011 and 2012, proofed the manuscript for me before submission for publication and constructed the table of abbreviations. Thank you also to Liverpool University Press, particularly Alison Welsby, for giving me the opportunity to have the manuscript published, and Trevor Matthews for compiling the index. Finally, I would like to thank my wife, Helen Warner, my children Julieanne and Robert Patmore and son-in-law James Bunton, to all of whom this book is dedicated, for their tolerance, particularly of the travel that was involved.
