Cinema of Confinement

Connelly, Thomas J.

Published by Northwestern University Press

Connelly, Thomas J.
Cinema of Confinement.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/63483.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/63483

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2257192
Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Excess, the Gaze, and Cinema of Confinement 3

1 Excess in Confinement in Room and Green Room 17

2 Big Window, Big Other: Enjoyment and Spectatorship in Alfred Hitchcock’s Rope 29

3 Interior Confinement: Shattering and Disintegration in Ingmar Bergman’s The Passion of Anna 43

4 It “Over-looks”: Movement and Stillness in Stanley Kubrick’s The Shining 62

5 “It’s Just a Show”? Paranoia and Provocation in Oliver Stone’s Talk Radio 80

6 Voices, Telephones, and Confined Spaces: Phone Booth and Locke 98

7 Captive, Captor, and Aliens: 10 Cloverfield Lane 119

Conclusion: 127 Hours, The Wall, Panic Room, and Cyberspace 137

Notes 153

Index 167