Contents

Foreword  F. Ross Peterson  x

Introduction  xiii

1. Growing Up in the 1920s  1
   The Progressive movement  7
   Our pattern of living  8
   How faculty earn and spend  18

2. The Great Depression and College Years  21
   Graduate study at Iowa State College  24
   Graduate study at the University of Chicago  31
   Finishing the degree and beginning a marriage  36

3. Producing Children and Books: The 1940s  43
   The Second World War  46
   Writing books  47
   The shadow manuscript  50
      What matters most  51
      The imperfect housekeeper  52
      They that wash on Monday  55
      Making ends meet  57
      Come to dinner  59
      Time off  59
      Mirror, mirror, tell me true  61
      Home is where mother is  61
      Just a housewife  64
      Are you happy?  66
      Educating our daughters  67

4. Search for Values  69
   The quick pick-up  70
   My life as a faculty wife  75
   Women and higher education  77
   The climate of the 1950s  79
   Reading philosophy and discussing it  80
   Turmoil and then a sabbatical  82
Travels 86
Political events 88

5. Conformity and Creativity 90
   Some views on conformity 90
   Women and the agricultural experiment station 91
   My efforts to help others 93
   Wynne’s trip to Iraq and the USSR 96
   The Russians come to dinner 98
   Inquiry into creativity 101

   Liberal tendencies 108
   Community Work 112
   The Logan Board of Education 115
   The War on Poverty 119
   Other matters 126

7. Feminist Straws in the Wind 129
   Feminist glimmerings in higher education 133
   The woman question in the media 134
   The Governor’s Committee on the Status of Women in Utah 136
   Conferences in Washington D.C. 138
   My view of women and higher education 140
   Concern over women’s low pay 142
   Our daughters and the women’s movement 143

8. Activism in the 1970s 147
   The year 1970 147
   Sandra’s environmental career 155
   League of Women Voters of Cache County 157
   Public library funding 160

9. The Women’s Movement at Utah State University 164
   The Ad Hoc Committee on the Status of Women 164
   The first women’s studies course 169
   Creation of the Women’s Center 174

10. The Widening Reach of the Women’s Movement 177
    The Equal Rights Amendment 177
    Three significant women’s conferences in 1977 181
        Hands Across the Valley 181
        The Salt Palace meetings 184
        The National IWY Women’s Conference, Houston 189
Sex and Gender in the Social Sciences 195
Wynne’s death 197
Sonia Johnson and the ERA 197
My Mormon connection 202

11. The University, Women, and History 203
   Women and International Development (WID) 203
   Historical papers and a promotion 206
   Commencements 211
   The USU centennial 215

12. Gathering up Loose Ends 222
   The national government and concern for social justice 222
   Second wave feminism and family work 225
   The challenge of feminist economics 227
   Commencement of 2000 228

Appendix: The Life and Career of Wynne Thorne 230
   Wisconsin and Texas 233
   Teaching and research at Utah State Agricultural College 233
   Administration of university research 235
   Consulting experience 240
   Retirement and continuing professional work 243

Postscript: What Became of the Children? 245

Acknowledgments 246

Notes 248

Index 274