Beautiful Lesson of the I

Brent, Frances

Published by Utah State University Press

Brent, Frances.
Beautiful Lesson of the I: poems.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/9873.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/9873

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=358669
BUTTERFLY

The butterfly is formed out of the same nothingness as the tree or ragged horse. Its spots are cinders of glazed copper. Its veins converge over the powdered surface like folds of a fan. Now, it is a little tent balanced on my finger, the undersides paler than a torn Japanese umbrella.