EGGS IN A BASKET

Those eggs aren’t large and cold or white as the two I hold in my hand, but speckled brown or painted like the five blue eggs in the antique dealer’s sunken stall.
Gilded hair’s breadth cracks are strung along the surfaces of shell.