FIGURE AND MOTH

The Dutch painters record how the pupil of the eye accommodates to the candle’s crack of light at the door:

burnished-brown miniature cloud surrounding the miniature gold crown of the tallow.

Distortion resides in ever-dissolving form:
the impostor appears at a well-pump;
his flaxen limbs relax
after the hosen are unraveled.

Someone with perfect brush stroke must catch this meal moth circling his incandescence, down to its dull scales
and powder.
