The Border and Its Bodies

Sheridan, Thomas E., McGuire, Randall H.

Published by University of Arizona Press

Sheridan, Thomas E. and Randall H. McGuire.
The Border and Its Bodies: The Embodiment of Risk Along the U.S.-México Line.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/68204
First, all of us would like to thank President Christine Szuter and the staff of the Amerind Foundation for their incomparable hospitality in hosting our research seminar in March 2016. It was a memorable experience for all of us to spend five days on Amerind’s beautiful campus in southeastern Arizona, exchanging ideas and laying the groundwork for this book. We also wish to thank Joe Wilder, director emeritus of the Southwest Center, and the Haury Foundation for partially funding the seminar itself.

Co-editor Tom Sheridan would like to thank his former students, three of whom—Robin Reineke, Rebecca Crocker, and David Seibert—have authored chapters in this volume, for educating him about the human costs of immigration along the U.S.-México line. He would also like to thank ranchers in the Altar Valley Conservation Alliance for sharing their experiences of the immigrant surge and the impact it had on their lives and their businesses.

Co-editor Randy McGuire and his co-author, Ruth Van Dyke, would like to recognize No More Deaths/No Más Muertes for welcoming them to be part of their important humanitarian work in Ambos Nogales. Most especially we want to thank David Hill, who has been the leading force in the Ambos Nogales work for many years. We also must thank the many migrants we met in Ambos Nogales for sharing with us their stories and experiences. They are valiant people struggling to better themselves and their families. They deserved far more assistance and help than we could give them.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS
THE BORDER AND ITS BODIES