Gershom Scholem
Zadoff, Noam

Published by Brandeis University Press

Zadoff, Noam.
Gershom Scholem: From Berlin to Jerusalem and Back.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/66698.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/66698
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xiii
Introduction: The Metaphysical Clown xv

PART I  “CONTINUITY OF THE CRISIS”
HOPE AND DISILLUSION (1923–1938) 1
1 Cultural Contexts 3
2 A Political Circle: Brit Shalom 38
3 Religious Contexts 60

PART II  THE UNPARALLELED CATASTROPHE
DESPAIR (1939–1948) 73
4 Responses to the Holocaust 75
5 The Journey to Salvage Looted Books and Manuscripts 95
6 The Heart of Odysseus 142

PART III  EIN TIEFES HEIMWEH
NOSTALGIA (1949–1982) 155
7 Eranos 157
8 Between Israel and Germany 189
9 Berlin, Again: The Finale 222
   Afterword: From Berlin to Jerusalem 251

Notes 259
References 295
Index of Names 317
I wish to thank the teachers, friends, and colleagues who helped me in the different phases of writing this book. To Moshe Zimmermann, Michael Brenner, Itta Shedletzky, Matthias Schmidt, Ada Rapoport-Albert, Rachel Elior, Moshe Idel, David Ruderman, Dan Laor, Jacob Barnai, Richard Cohen, David Myers, John Efron, Jens Malte Fischer, Tilo Schabert, Shaul Magid, Malachi Hacohen, and Eric Jacobson, thank you for discussing different aspects of Gershom Scholem’s life and work with me, and for helping me sharpen my observations on the complexities of his life.

I am grateful to the friends, colleagues, and students of Scholem who shared with me their memories and insights, especially Jürgen Habermas, Hartmut von Hentig, Mayer Abramowitz, and Avraham Shapira. My gratitude goes also to the archives that opened their doors to me and allowed me to search their collections: the Archives Department at the National Library of Israel, the Central Archives for the History of the Jewish People, the Hebrew University of Jerusalem archive and Oral History Division, and the archive of the Wissenschaftskolleg zu Berlin.

I would also like to thank Ernst Peter Wieckenberg for the friendly way he opened for me a window into the intellectual world in Germany after World War II. My parents, Diana and Efraim Zadoff, and my parents-in-law, Huberta and Richard Triendl, were always ready to help with matters concerning the book.

The English publication of the book was made possible thanks to generous support from the Israel Institute in Washington and the Borns Jewish Studies Program and the History Department at Indiana University. Special thanks go to Jeffrey Green for his accurate and attentive translation, which shows the strong personal interest he took in the book; to Jeanne Ferris for editing the book meticulously and patiently; and to Sylvia Fuks Fried and Eugene Sheppard at Brandeis University Press and Phyllis Deutsch and Ann Brash at University Press of New England for their advice and support.

Finally, my thanks to my dearest of all, Mirjam, Amos, and Emilia, whose support and patience made the writing of this book possible.