Homicide in American Fiction, 1798–1860

Davis, David Brion

Published by Cornell University Press

Davis, David Brion.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/57991

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2092940
INDEX

Abortion, relation to sex and homicide in fiction, 161
"Adam Baker, the Renegade," 256
Adultery: American attitudes toward, 179-184; relation to homicide, 181-184
Aggression: and capital punishment, 306; and dueling, 279-280; and sexual impulse, 171-172; as release from insecurity, 224; Lockian view of, 15-16; origins of in family conflict, 34-35, 101-104, 224-227, 255, 265; phrenological explanation of, 23-26; relation to revenge, 210-213
Alienation: distinction between moral and physical, xiv-xv, 84-87, 114-119; from God, 5-7; identity of moral and physical, 12, 26-27; moral alienation in fiction, 87, 93-94, 97-100; moral alienation in woman, 168-170; physical alienation in moral-sense philosophy, 20; process of, 311; relation to capital punishment, 292-294; relation to insanity, 69, 76, 84-85
Allston, Washington, on human evil, 40
Alonzo and Melissa, 154
American Revolution, fictional interpretation of, 245-247
Arrington, Alfred: justification of dueling, 280-281; justification of lynching, 286; on moral insanity, 128-130; on superman, 53-54
Arthur, Timothy Shay, 43-44
Arthur Mervyn, 131-132
Austin, Benjamin, 267
Beauchamp, Jereboam O., 228-234; versions of case in fiction, 229-230
Beuchampe, 45, 230-233
Beautiful Cigar Girl, The, 263
Beccaria, Cesare, 292
Beck, Theodric Romeyn, 71
Beecher, Lyman, 271
"Benito Cereno," 47, 63
Bennett, Emerson: on dueling, 281-282; on lynching, 285
Bennett, James Gordon, 161-163
Bentham, Jeremy, 16
Billy Budd, 308
Bird, Robert Montgomery: on lynching, 285-286; on monomania, 106-108; on villain, 52
“Black Cat, The,” 109-110
Blackstone, William, 62-63
Blithedale Romance, The, 173
Bovee, Martin H., 294, 298-299
Brothers, Thomas, 243-245, 265
Brown, Charles Brockden: identification of sex and death, 157-158; on causes of moral insanity, 131-132; on evil and the power of habit, 39; on lack of vengeance in women, 227; on monomania, 87-100; on moral insanity, 127-128; on superman, 49-52
Bulwer-Lytton, Edward, 217-218, 294
Buntline, Ned, see Judson, E. Z. C.
Bushnell, Horace, 8-9
Cahn, Edmond, 60
Capital punishment: arguments against, 294-295; attacked by Bencaria, 292; criticism of in fiction, 301-305; defense of, 296-298; early success in abolishing, 296; reduction in number of crimes subject to, 295 n. 5
Caruthers, William A.: on dueling, 277-278; on revenge as motive, 213
Chainbearer, The, 253-254
Channing, William Ellery, 210-211
Cheever, George Barrell, 297
Chivers, Thomas Holley, on Beau-champ case, 229
City, see Crime and Violence
Clemens, Samuel L., 170-171, 271
Commonwealth v. Rogers, 64-65, 77
Confession, 185-190, 304
Cooper, James Fenimore: on capital punishment, 307; on causes of moral insanity, 135-137; on demented heroine, 85-86; on falli-

INDEX

bility of human justice, 300; on forces threatening social order, 250-251; on frontier violence, 251-254; on human evil, 40; on lynching, 284; on monomania, 100-104; on revenge, 215-217; opposed to criminal reform, 305-306
Countess, The, 279-280
Courts, fallibility of in fiction, 300-301
Crime: American interest in, 125; associated with city, 257-265; associated with conspiracy, 261-262; phrenological explanation of, 23-26; prevention by nurture of moral sense, 22; relation to female evil, 205; see also Aggression, Alienation, Capital punishment, and Moral insanity
Curtis, Newton Mallory: on capital punishment, 301-302; on causes of moral insanity, 133-135; on city crime, 264-265
Dana, Richard Henry, Sr.: on adultery and homicide, 191-200; on human evil, 39; on moral insanity, 139
Death, associated with sex in fiction, 156-178, 208-209
Deerslayer, The, 252
Democracy, traditional association with anarchy and violence, 240-245, 247-248, 311-312
Dueling: differences in American and European practice, 268, 270; relation to unregulated combat, 283; Southern justification of, 269; treatment of in fiction, 277-283
Durivage, Francis A., on origins of revenge, 224-227
Dwight, Timothy: on capital punishment, 306; on dueling, 271; on
 INDEX

Dwight, Timothy (cont.)
origin of human evil, 7-8; on sex and depravity, 150-151.

Edgar Huntley, 94-100
Edith Vernon, 224-227
Edwards, Jonathan, 8, 14, 22, 35, 78
Emmons, Nathaniel, 5-7
Empire City, The, 206
Errata, 278-279
Erskine, Lord, 63-64
Esquiriel, Jean, 66

Evil: association with city, 259; assumptions concerning in fiction, 39-47; Calvinistic view of, 4-7; Lockian view of, 15-16; relation to female sexuality, 168-170, 176, 201-209; transcendentalist view of, 10-12; see also Aggression, Capital punishment, and Responsibility

Fay, Theodore Sedgwick, on dueling, 279-280
Field, Joseph M.: on dueling, 282-283; on frontier violence, 255-256
Fink, Mike, 255-256
Founding Fathers, image of in fiction, 121, 241, 243, 247, 251
Frank Rivers, 165-170
Freeman, William, trial of, 79-80
Freud, Sigmund, 23, 82, 36
Freudianism, 191-192
Frontier violence, 251-257

Gall, Franz Joseph, 23
G'hal's of New York, The, 220-221
"Giant's Coffin, The," 255
Godwin, William, 49, 51
"Great Small Affair Duel, The," 282-283
Greyslaer, 230

Guilt: and capital punishment, 294, 297-298; conventional view of in fiction, 31, 33; difference concerning in men and women, 169-170; legal assumptions concerning, 60-62, 68-69, 77-81, 84-85; relation to monomania in fiction, 88-100, 110; see also Alienation
Guy Rivers, 139-143, 221-223

Hall, James, 285
Harpe's Head, The, 285
Hawthorne, Nathaniel: association of sex and death, 173; on human evil, 41; on origin of aggression, 36-39; on woman's evil, 205
Heart of Midlothian, The, 283
Hickok, Laurens P., 21, 76
Hildreth, Richard, 306-307
Hoffman, Charles Fenn, on Beauchamp case, 230
Hopkins, Samuel, 5, 7
Horseshoe Robinson, 284
Hot blood: as justification for killing adulterer, 182; as justification for lynching, 289-290; relation to jealousy, 200-201
Howard, H. R., 164-165, 274-275
Hutcheson, Francis, 18-19, 149

Illuminati, 51
Ingraham, Joseph Holt: on Helen Jewett case, 165-170; on Mary Rogers case, 262
Insanity: classification of symptoms, 71; delusions and homicide in fiction, 88-94; distinction between dementia and partial insanity in fiction, 85-87; early investigations of, 70-75; early legal tests for, 62-69; implications of M'Naughten Rules, 68-69; relation to motives in criminal acts, 64-65; see also Irresistible impulse, Monomania, Moral insanity, and Responsibility

Insurgents, The, 248-249
Irresistible impulse: in fiction, 98; theory of, 74-75
Irving, Washington: association of sex and death, 174-175; on origins of aggression, 29-35

"Jack Long," 286-289
Jackson, Daniel, 154
Jealousy: as motive for homicide, 185-200; see also Adultery
Jewett, Helen, 161-170
Judd, Sylvester, 303-304
Judson, E. Z. C.: moralistic purpose in city novels, 258-260; on origins of crime, 259-260; on origins of revenge, 218-221; on woman's evil, 204-205

Kate Clarendon, 285
Kennedy, John Pendleton: on deformed villain, 127; on lynching, 284

Lawless, Judge, 275-276
Lewis, Matthew G., 158, 173-174
Lionel Lincoln, 100-104
Lippard, George: association of sex and death, 176; identification of seduction with homicide, 159-160; on capital punishment, 302; on city violence, 259-261; on dueling, 279; on female vengeance, 227; on moral insanity, 126-127; on sexual impulse, 154; on superman, 52-53; on woman's evil, 206-208
Livingston, Edward, 301; on capital punishment, 294-295; on sexual offenses, 152
Locke, John: contrasted with moral sense philosophy, 21; contrasted with Sampson on criminology, 26; criticized by Rush and Ray on theory of insanity, 66; influence in America, 13; on capital punishment, 291-292, 306; on human evil, 15-16; on moral sense, 14; on responsibility, 14-15; on self-defense, 181, 269; replaced by Scottish philosophy in America, 20
Lockwood, Ralph Ingersoll, 248-249
Lovejoy, E. P., 275
Lynching: development of in America, 272-276; in fiction, 283-290; see also Hot blood and Revenge

M'Naghten Rules, 67-69
Mahan, Asa, 21
Marble Faun, The, 36-39, 205
Margaret, 303-304
Martin Faber, 137-139
Melville, Herman, 63; on capital punishment, 308; on evil, 46-47; on monomania, 111-113; on revenge as motive for homicide, 214
Mesmerism, 52-53
Moby-Dick, 46, 111-112, 214
Monomania: description of, 71; in fiction, 85-116; see also Insanity and Revenge
Moral depravity, see Moral insanity
Moral insanity, 77-78, 80-83; and fictional villains, 82-83, 119-125; and phrenology, 74; early theories of, 72-74; in fiction, 125-143; origins of in family conflict, 139-143; relation to physical deformity, 126-127; see also Alienation and Crime
Moral-sense philosophy, 18-20: acceptance of in America, 20-21; ambiguities of, 35-36; implications of, 312-313; relation to capital punishment, 298; relation to moral relativism, 235; relation to theory of hot blood, 200-201, 266-267, 289-290
Motives: ambiguity of in monomania, 93-94, 99-100; see also Aggression, Evil, Jealousy, and Revenge
Murrell, John A., 249, 274
INDEX

Mysteries and Miseries of New York, The, 258-259
Mysteries of Paris, The, 257
“Mystery of Marie Rogêt, The,” 263

Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym, The, 46
Neal, John: on capital punishment, 301; on dueling, 278-279; on guilt and intention, 94; on superman, 52
New York: Its Upper Ten and Lower Million, 206-209
Norman Leslie, 280

Ormond, 39, 157-158, 227

Paine, Thomas, 244
Paley, William, 16-17, 150
Parker, Theodore, 118; compared with Sampson on theory of crime, 26-27; on origin of criminality, 9-12; on violence and Mexican War, 243
Partisan, The, 105-106
Paul Clifford, 217-218
“Paul Felton,” 191-200
Peirce, Cyrus, 22
Phrenology: and theory of crime, 23-26; and moral insanity, 74
Pierre, 47, 308
Pinckney, Charles C., 272
Pinel, Philippe, 70, 73-74, 119
Poe, Edgar Allan: association of sex and death, 172-173, 175-176; on Beauchamp case, 230; on human evil, 46; on Mary Rogers case, 263; on monomania, 108-110; on moral insanity, 123-124
Politian, 290
Prairie, The, 307
Prichard, James C., 66, 77-78
Prostitution, relation to homicide, 161-170

Psychopathic personality, see Moral insanity
Punishment, see Capital punishment

Quaker City, The, 52-53, 126-127, 159-160, 206, 260-261

Rangers and Regulators of the Tanaha, The, 53-54, 128-130
Rantoul, Robert, Jr., 295
“Rappaccini’s Daughter,” 40
Ray, Isaac, 66, 76, 78-80
Reid, Thomas, 19-20
Responsibility: and test for insanity, 67-69, 77; denial of in criminals, 11-12; relation to insanity, 61-69, 75-82; see also Alienation, Evil, Guilt, and Insanity
Revenge: and adultery, 181-184, 206-209; and dueling, 261-272, 277-283; and lynching, 272-276, 284-290; conventional view of in fiction, 31; origins of, 210-213; relation to monomania, 105-113; treatment of in fiction, 213-236; see also Aggression and Crime
Reynolds, George, 258
Rhett, Robert Barnwell, 272
Richard Hurdis, 142
Rob of the Bowl, 127
Rogers, Mary Cecilia, 262-264
Romanticism, and fictional villains, 122-125
Ruling passion, 41-42, 75
Rush, Benjamin, 119; influences on, 70; on sexual abstinence, 155; theory of moral insanity, 72-73

St. Clair, Henry, 229
Sampson, M. B., 23-27
Scarlet Letter, The, 205-206
Scott, Sir Walter, 289

Seduction: associated with homicide in fiction, 156, 159-160; revenge for, 227-234
Selfridge, Thomas, 267
Seward, William H., 80
Sex: associated with death in fiction, 156-178; relation to aggression in fiction, 235; relation to moral alienation, 168-170; relation to romantic psychology, 36; relation to seduction and revenge, 227-234; tension over in 1840's and 50's, 152-153
Shaw, Lemuel, 64-65, 77, 93
Shays' Rebellion, interpretation of in fiction, 248-249
Simms, William Gilmore: interpretation of American lawlessness, 249-250; justification of lynching, 284-285; on adultery and homicide, 185-190; on Beauchamp case, 230-233; on capital punishment, 302-304; on dueling, 277; on frontier violence, 254-255; on human evil, 41-43, 45; on monomania, 105-106; on moral insanity, 137-143; on origins of revenge, 221-224
Slave, The, 306-307
Spy, The, 284
Stanton, Edwin M., 182
"Story of the Young Italian, The," 29-35
"Story of the Young Robber, The," 174-175
Sue, Eugène, 257-258
Superman: relation to vengeful hero, 234; significance of in fiction, 48-55; see also Moral Insanity
Tocqueville, Alexis de, 180-181, 183, 199, 201, 209
"Tom Thornton," 139
Twain, Mark, see Clemens, Samuel L.
Upham, Thomas, 12-13, 20-21, 76, 294
Utilitarianism, 16
Villain: and city crime, 264-265; comparison of in American and English fiction, 121; psychological significance of, 120-125; see also Moral Insanity and Superman
Violence: incidence of in America, 242 n. 1; in the city, 257-265; on the frontier, 251-257; see also Aggression, Crime, Dueling, and Lynching
Ways of the Hour, The, 135-137
Webber, Charles W.: on frontier violence, 256-257; on lynching and private vengeance, 286-289
Weems, Mason Locke, 184-185
Wept of Wish-ton-Wish, The, 86
Wharton, Francis, 74, 81, 297
Wieland, 88-94
Wilson, John Lyde, 269
Wister, Owen, 284
Woodcraft, 284-285
Wyandotte, 215-217
Yemassee, The, 142