Sex, Love, and Migration
Bloch, Alexia

Published by Cornell University Press

Bloch, Alexia.
Sex, Love, and Migration: Postsocialism, Modernity, and Intimacy from Istanbul to the Arctic.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/63613

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2264043
Contents

List of Illustrations ix
Acknowledgments xi
Note on Transliteration and Translation xv

Part 1. MOBILITIES AND INTIMACIES
   Introduction: From the Arctic to Istanbul 3
   1. Magnificent Centuries and Economies of Desire 34

Part 2. INTIMATE PRACTICES AND GLOBAL CIRCUITS
   2. Gender, Labor, and Emotion in a Global Economy 57
   3. “We Are Like Slaves—Who Needs Capitalism?”: Intimate Economies and Marginal, Mobile Households 76

Part 3. SEX, LOVE, AND UNPROMISING STATES
   4. Strategic Intimacy, “Real Love,” and Marriage 115
   5. Intimate Currencies: Love, Romance, and Sex “without Hang-ups” 135
   6. “Other Mothers,” Grandmothers, and the State 163
      Conclusion: On the Move 188

Appendix. People Featured 193
Notes 195
Bibliography 225
Index 253