The Troubled Origins of the Italian Catholic Labor Movement, 1878-1914

Sándor Agócs

Published by Wayne State University Press

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/56562

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2209000

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License.
Contents

Acknowledgments 8

Introduction 10

Chapter 1 Philosophy by Decree: Leo XIII and the Thomistic Revival 17

Chapter 2 The Right to Property Sanctioned by Natural Law 22
  The Defense of Private Property 25
  The Social Functions of Property 29
  The Tutelage Extended to Working People by the Upper Classes 29

Chapter 3 Inequality of Rights and Power Proceeds from the Very Author of Nature 34
  The Hierarchical Ordering of Society 39
  The Rejection of the Principle of Equality 45
  The Permanence of Classes on the Social Landscape and the Paradoxical Objection to Conflict among Classes 45

Chapter 4 Fraternity and Angelic Charity 50
  Catholic Corporative Doctrine 55
  Italian Catholic Congresses and the Mixed Union 57
  Foreign Models and the Italians’ Choice 62
  The State as Moderator of the Affairs of Society 62
Chapter 5  The Spirit of Revolutionary Change

The Encyclical Rerum Novarum and the Appearance of the Concept of the Simple Union 68

The Fasci Movement in Sicily and the Social Activism of the Clergy 76

Class Conflict as a Fact of Life 81

The 1901 Wave of Strikes and the Reaction of Leo XIII 84

Toniolo and the Ascendancy of the Simple Union 88

Chapter 6  To Restore All Things in Christ

The Reorganization of Catholic Action under Pius X and the Suppression of Democratic Tendencies 95

The Ban on the Social Activism of the Clergy 99

Doctrinal Adjustments 110

Neutrality in Labor Conflict 113

The Alliance between Wealth and the Altar 119

Chapter 7  Aversion to the Higher Classes Is Contrary to the True Spirit of Christian Charity

Catholics Confront Socialism 126

Catholic Labor in the Industrial Sector 131

Rural to Urban Migration 134

Pastoral Work among the Migrants 135

The Aversion to the Industrial Working Class 138

Chapter 8  He Who Is a Saint Cannot Disagree with the Pope

The Vatican Attempts to Reintroduce the Mixed Union 141

The Activists’ Refusal 147

Chapter 9  Religion, the Best Custodian of Justice

The Landless Peasants and the Catholic Labor Movement 153

The Activists Press for Land Reform 160

Nonunion Economic Institutions 163
Chapter 10 The Pope Will Remain Silent

The Religious Nature of Catholic Organizations and the Issues of Lay Autonomy 165

The Reinforcement of Clerical Control over Catholic Action 173

The Encyclical Singulari quadam and the Last Battle of the Papacy of Pius X 175

Conclusions 186

Notes 200

References 233

Index 246