List of Maps, Tables, and Illustrations

Maps
1. Major political centres and geographic and linguistic regions in late medieval and early modern south India. xxiv
2. Towns, rivers, and waters in south India mentioned in this study. xxv

Tables
1. South India's succession of dynasties, 2nd millennium CE (strongly simplified), with arrows indicating close succession ties between polities. 7
2. Tuluvas of Vijayanagara, regnal years, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 114
3. Aravidus of Vijayanagara, regnal years, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 119
4. Nayakas of Ikkeri, regnal dates, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 138
5. Nayakas of Tanjavur, regnal dates, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 145
6. Bhonsles of Tanjavur (until 1780s), regnal dates, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 158
7. Nayakas of Madurai, regnal dates, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 172
8. Setupatis of Ramnad (until 1790s), regnal dates, relations to predecessors, and further remarks. 188
9. Distribution of gifts among prominent courtiers during Dutch missions to Ikkeri, in order of value, 1668-1738. 232
10. Distribution of gifts among prominent courtiers during Dutch missions to Bhonsie Tanjavur, in order of value, 1677-1764. 254
11. Distribution of gifts among prominent courtiers during Dutch missions to Madurai, in order of value, 1668-1731. 265
12. Distribution of gifts among prominent courtiers during Dutch missions to Ramnad, in order of value, 1724-43. 279
13. Alliances and conflicts between Vijayanagara successor states from mid-1680 to mid-1681, as recorded by the Dutch. 447
Illustrations

2. Detail of the Bhogasale vamsa caritra inscription, Brihadishvara Temple (south and west enclosing walls), Tanjavur, 1803 (photo by the author).

3. Address of a letter of April 1631 by Christian IV of Denmark to Ramabhadra Nayaka of Tanjavur, Rigsarkivet, Copenhagen, Den Ledeborgske Dokumentsamling (1466-1701), no. 89 (11 April 1631) (photo by P.S. Ramanujam, courtesy Rigsarkivet).

5. Statues of some of the Nayakas of Madurai, including Tirumalai Nayaka on the right, Putu Mandapa, Madurai, c. 1630s (courtesy Crispin Branfoot).

6. Details of murals depicting Queen Mangammal of Madurai receiving the royal sceptre from the local goddess Minakshi through a priest (left), and attending a divine wedding with her grandson Vijayaranga Chokkanatha Nayaka (right), Unjal Mandapa (central ceiling), Minakshi Sundareshvara Temple, Madurai, c. 1700? (courtesy Institut Français de Pondichéry / British Library EAP 692).

Mural depicting Muttu Vijaya Raghunatha Setupati of Ramnad holding court, Ramalinga Vilasam (main hall, south wall), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (photo by C. Ganesan, courtesy John and Fausta Eskenazi, source: southindianpaintings.art/monuments/ramanathapuram).

Mural showing Vijayanagara courtiers, Virabhadra Temple, Lepakshi, 16th century (photo by C. Ganesan, courtesy John and Fausta Eskenazi, source: southindianpaintings.art/monuments/lepakshi-virabhadraswamy-temple).

Detail of a gold-foil letter of April 1620 by Raghunatha Nayaka of Tanjavur to the king of Denmark, showing the Nayaka’s name and titles in Tamil in the top line, Rigsarkivet, Copenhagen, Udenrigsministeriet, Traktatsamling, Traktater Et, Forholdet til udlanet 1454-1699, no. 20 (photo by P.S. Ramanujam, courtesy Rigsarkivet).

Mural showing a south Indian king receiving a European visitor, Narumpunadasvami Temple, Tiruppudaimarudur, 16th century? (courtesy École française d’Extrême-Orient).

Mural showing a south Indian king receiving Indian officials, Narumpunadasvami Temple, Tiruppudaimarudur, 16th century? (courtesy École française d’Extrême-Orient).

Mural depicting Muttu Vijaya Raghunatha Setupati of Ramnad receiving European envoys, Ramalinga Vilasam (main hall, south wall), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (photo by the author).

Mural depicting Muttu Vijaya Raghunatha Setupati of Ramnad receiving European envoys, Ramalinga Vilasam (back room, arches), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (photo by the author).

Mural showing a battle between Ramnad and Tanjavur, including a European soldier, Ramalinga Vilasam (main hall, south-east wall), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (photo by the author).
Mural depicting Muttu Vijaya Raghunatha Setupati of Ramnad being coronated by Vijayaranga Chokkanatha Nayaka of Madurai, Ramalinga Vilasam (back room, arches), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (courtesy Purnima Srikrishna).

Mural depicting Muttu Vijaya Raghunatha Setupati of Ramnad receiving a sceptre from the tutelary goddess Rajarajeshvari, Ramalinga Vilasam (back room, arches), Ramanathapuram, c. 1720 (photo by the author).

Statues thought by some scholars to depict Queen Virammaji of Ikkeri and her adopted son Somashekara III, Rameshvara Temple, Keladi (courtesy R.K.K. Rajarajan).