Capitalism’s Crises

Published by Wits University Press

Heywood, Mark, et al.
Capitalism’s Crises: Class struggles in South Africa and the world.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/50537.

⇒ For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/50537

⇒ For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=1943568
Capitalism’s Crises shows that the processes of global change start from the peripheries of the world system and, for the visible future, that reality will continue to govern the struggles for the emancipation of labour and peoples.

Samir Amin, Marxist intellectual and author of Capitalism in the Age of Globalization.

This book demonstrates that Marxist-inspired thought and practice is searching for creative ways to secure and advance the interests of the working class and, more generally, the human species and our planet.

There is no other book quite like it. Its scholarship is sound; it is provocative and controversial, and it will get people thinking and discussing.

Martin Legassick, historian and Emeritus Professor at the University of the Western Cape.

The new global Left is fighting the struggle with new instruments of transformation ... This book draws attention to the plurality of left political forms, new approaches to power and ways of analysing the current crises of capitalism.

Dinga Sikwebu, former national educator of the National Union of Metalworkers of South Africa and currently national coordinator of the United Front.

This second volume in the Democratic Marxism series breaks new ground in our understanding of the complexity and depth of the world-wide economic crisis. The contributors, from across the global North and South, employ political, economic and ecological prisms to reflect the wide range of left responses – from the Occupy Wall Street movement to the People’s Budget Initiative in India and left think-tanks, to labour unions and left parties such as Syriza and Podemos in Europe. Their compelling analyses showcase the global impact of capitalism’s failure in the twenty-first century.

Vishwas Satgar is a senior lecturer in International Relations at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. He is the recipient of the 2015 Distinguished Achievement Award of the World Association for Political Economy for initiating and editing this series.