One Hundred Years of the ANC
van Kessel, Ineke, Southall, Roger, Soudien, Crain, Soske, Jon, Shubin, Vladimir, Saul, John, Nieftagodien, Noor, Netshitenzhe, Joel, Macmillan, Hugh, Lissoni, Arianna, Gunner, Liz, Etherington, Norman, Erlank, Natasha, Booysen, Susan, Bonner, Phil, Barchiesi, Franco, Badsha, Omar, April, Thozama

Published by Wits University Press

Kessel, Ineke, et al.
One Hundred Years of the ANC: Debating liberation histories today.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/50563.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/50563

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=1944480
Contributors

Thozama April is a lecturer in the department of History at the University of Fort Hare and a Ford Fellow. She holds an Honours and a Master’s degree in History from the University of the Western Cape. She has served as project manager of the Visiting Scholars Programme at the Robben Island Museum. She contributed to a chapter on the underground operations of the liberation movements in South Africa, which appeared in the first volume of the South African Democracy Education Trust’s publication, The Road to Democracy in South Africa. Her research interests are women and gender studies and liberation struggles as well as post-apartheid historiographies.

Omar Badsha is the founder and CEO of South African History Online. An artist and photographer, he has exhibited extensively and published and edited a number of books. He was one of the founders of Afrapix, the famous photographers’ collective. An activist from his high school days, he participated in the leadership of many of the leading political, trade union and cultural organisations of the anti-apartheid struggle.

Franco Barchiesi is associate professor in the department of African American and African Studies at Ohio State University. From 1996 to 2002, he taught in the department of Sociology at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg where he earned his PhD. He is the author of Precarious Liberation: Workers, the State, and Contested Social Citizenship in Post-Apartheid South Africa (2011) and co-editor of Rethinking the Labour Movement in the ‘New South Africa’ (2003).

Philip Bonner, retired professor of History at the University of the Witwatersrand, held the NRF Chair in Local Histories and Present Realities between 2007–2012. He served on the editorial committee of the South African Democracy Education Trust and helped supervise the production of volume 1 of The Road to Democracy in South Africa. He was co-curator of the Apartheid Museum in Johannesburg and was involved in a partnership between the History Workshop and the Robben Island Museum, supervising a pilot project interviewing former Robben Island prisoners.
Susan Booysen is professor in the Graduate School of Public and Development Management, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. She is the author of The African National Congress and the Regeneration of Political Power (2011) and edited Local Elections in South Africa: Parties, People, Politics (2012). She also co-edited Compendium of Elections in Southern Africa (2009). She specialises in South and southern African politics, with a particular focus on government and opposition, electoral politics, protest and public policy. She also works as a media commentator and analyst, is a contributing editor to the Johannesburg newspaper The Star and is a member of the editorial board of the South African Journal of Political Studies, Politikon.

Natasha Erlank received her History degrees from the universities of Cape Town and Cambridge. She is currently an associate professor in Historical Studies at the University of Johannesburg. Her principle area of research is the histories of Christianity and gender in South Africa, and she is currently working on a social history of black mainstream Christianity in the early twentieth century. This work includes a focus on anti-colonial nationalisms across the British colonial world. She has published on gender and the politics of the African National Congress. Her broader interests lie in the theory and methodology of history.

Norman Etherington is emeritus professor of History at the University of Western Australia and a research associate in history at the University of South Africa. His books include The Great Treks (2001), Missions and Empire (2007), Theories of Imperialism (1984), Mapping Colonial Conquest: Australia and South Africa and Preachers, Peasants and Politics in Southeast Africa (1978). He is a past president of the Australian Historical Association, the Academy of Social Sciences in Australia, the Royal Historical Society and the Royal Geographical Society.

Arianna Lissoni is a postdoctoral research fellow in the School of Research and Postgraduate Studies at North-West University (Mafikeng). She obtained her PhD, titled ‘The South African Liberation Movements in Exile, c. 1945–1970,’ from the School of Oriental and African Studies in 2008. Between 2008 and 2011 she was a post-doctoral researcher in the NRF Chair in ‘Local Histories and Present Realities’ at the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg, where she is a member of the History Workshop. She is one of the editors of the South African Historical Journal. She continues to engage in research about South African resistance politics and history.

Hugh Macmillan is an historian who has taught at universities in Swaziland, Zambia and South Africa. He is currently a research associate at the African Studies Centre, Oxford University, and is completing a book on the history of the ANC in exile in Zambia. His books include An African Trading Empire (2005) and (with Frank Shapiro) Zion in Africa (1999).

Joel Netshitenzhe is executive director and board vice-chairperson of the Mapungubwe Institute for Strategic Reflection. He is a member of the National Planning Commission and the ANC National Executive Committee. He sits on the boards of the Nedbank Group, Life Healthcare Group and CEEF, Africa. He was appointed head of the Policy Unit in the presidency in 2001, a position he held full time until his retirement in 2009.

Noor Nieftagodien is chair of the History Workshop and lectures in the History Department of the University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg. He serves on the boards of the South African History Archives, the Centre for Urban and Built Environment Studies and African Studies. He previously served on the editorial board of The Road to Democracy in South Africa project. With Philip Bonner he has published books on the history of Alexandra and Kathorus. Along with Sally Gaule, his most recent publication is on the history of Orlando West (2012).

John S Saul, a long-time activist in support of social and economic justice in Africa and of the genuine liberation of southern Africa. He is professor emeritus of Social and Political Science at York University in Canada and has taught extensively in Tanzania, Mozambique and South Africa. He has produced some 20 books on Africa and on broader development issues, including The Next Liberation Struggle (2005), Revolutionary Traveller: Freeze-Frames from a Life (2009) and an omnibus of recent writings, entitled On Reversing the Tide: Resisting Recolonization in Southern Africa and Beyond (in press).
Vladimir Shubin is deputy director of the Institute for African Studies and the Russian Academy of Sciences and a professor at the Russian State University for the Humanities. Before joining academia in the late 1960s he was involved in both political and practical support for the liberation struggle in Africa. He has written several books in English, including Social Democracy and Southern Africa (under the pen name Vladimir Bushin, 1989), ANC: a View from Moscow (1999) and The Hot ‘Cold War’: the USSR in Southern Africa (2008). In 2006, he was awarded The Order of the Companions of OR Tambo (silver) for his contribution to the struggle against apartheid and colonialism.

Jon Soske is assistant professor of History at McGill University and a faculty associate of the Indian Ocean World Centre. He worked as an editorial advisor and project organiser for South African History Online (SAHO) from 2010 to 2012 and continues to collaborate with SAHO on a number of projects, including the SA History Public History Internship. He is co-editor of South-South: Interruptions and Encounters (2009). He is currently working on two books: Boundaries of Diaspora: African Nationalism, the Indian Diaspora, and 20th Century South Africa and a project on Black Consciousness during the 1980s, centred on the life of Dr Abu Baker ‘Hurley’ Asvat.

Cain Soudien is deputy vice-chancellor of the University of Cape Town. He is widely published in the areas of social difference, culture, education policy, comparative education, educational change, public history and popular culture. He is co-editor of three books on District Six, Cape Town. In addition, he wrote The Making of Youth Identity in Contemporary South Africa: Race, Culture and Schooling (2007) and Realising the Dream: Unlearning the Logic of Race in the South African School (2012). He is the former chairperson of the District Six Museum Foundation and is currently the chair of the Ministerial Committee on Transformation in Higher Education.

Ineke van Kessel is a senior researcher at the African Studies Centre in Leiden, Netherlands. Trained as an historian, she has also worked as a journalist. Her main research interests are social and political movements in contemporary South Africa and the historical relationships between the Netherlands and the Gold Coast (present-day Ghana). Her publications include: ‘Beyond our Wildest Dreams’: The United Democratic Front and the Transformation of South Africa (2000), Zwarte Hollanders: Afrikaanse soldaten in Nederlands Indië (2005) and Nelson Mandela in een notendop (2005). She edited Merchants, Missionaries and Migrants: 300 years of Dutch-Ghanaian relations (2002) and co-edited Movers and Shakers: Social Movements in Africa (2009).