Margaret Atwood's Textual Assassination

Wilson, Sharon Rose

Published by The Ohio State University Press

Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/28306.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/28306

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=1151789
Contents

Acknowledgement vii
List of Abbreviations ix
Introduction Sharon R. Wilson xi

1. Murder in the Dark: Margaret Atwood’s Inverse Poetics of Intertextual Minuteness Reingard M. Nischik 1

2. Fiction Flashes: Genre and Intertexts in Good Bones Sharon R. Wilson 18

3. Strange Visions: Atwood’s Interlunar and Technopoetics Shannon Hengen 42

4. (Dis)unified Field Theories: The Clarendon Lectures Seen through (a) Cat’s Eye Mary K. Kirtz 54

5. Strangers within the Gates: Margaret Atwood’s Wilderness Tips Carol L. Beran 74

6. The Robber Bride; or, Who Is a True Canadian? Coral Ann Howells 88
Contents

7.  Humanizing the Fox: Atwood’s Poetic Tricksters and Morning in the Burned House
Kathryn Van Spanckeren 102

8.  Quilting as Narrative Art: Metafictional Construction
in Alias Grace
Sharon R. Wilson 121

9.  A Left-Handed Story: The Blind Assassin
Karen F. Stein 135

10. Talking Back to Bluebeard: Atwood’s Fictional Storytellers
Karen F. Stein 154

Works Cited 173
Notes on Contributors 187
Index 189