Hip Sublime

Murnaghan, Sheila

Published by The Ohio State University Press

Murnaghan, Sheila.
Hip Sublime: Beat Writers and the Classical Tradition.
The Ohio State University Press, 2017.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/66753.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/66753

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2331570
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments vii

INTRODUCTION

Stephen Dickey, Sheila Murnaghan, and Ralph M. Rosen 1

CHAPTER 1

Beats Visiting Hell: Katabasis in Beat Literature

Stephen Dickey 15

CHAPTER 2

“Thalatta, Thalatta!”: Xenophon, Joyce, and Kerouac

Christopher Gair 38

CHAPTER 3

“The Final Fix” and “The Transcendent Kingdom”: The Quest in the Early Work of William S. Burroughs

Loni Reynolds 55

CHAPTER 4

The Invention of Sincerity: Allen Ginsberg and the Philology of the Margins

Matthew Pfaff 73

CHAPTER 5

Radical Brothers-in-Arms: Gaius and Hank at the Racetrack

Marguerite Johnson 97

CHAPTER 6

Riffing on Catullus: Robert Creeley’s Poetics of Adultery

Nick Selby 116

CHAPTER 7

Sappho Comes to the Lower East Side: Ed Sanders, the Sixties Avant-Garde, and Fictions of Sappho

Jennie Skerl 138
CONTENTS

CHAPTER 8  Robert Duncan and Pindar’s Dance
   Victoria Moul  160

CHAPTER 9  Kenneth Rexroth: Greek Anthologist
   Gideon Nisbet  184

CHAPTER 10 Philip Whalen and the Classics: “A Walking Grove of Trees”
   Jane Falk  210

CHAPTER 11 Troubling Classical and Buddhist Traditions in Diane di Prima’s Loba
   Nancy M. Grace and Tony Trigilio  226

CHAPTER 12 Towards a Post-Beat Poetics: Charles Olson’s Localism and the Second Sophistic
   Richard Fletcher  252

AFTERWORD “Standing at a Juncture of Planes”
   Nancy M. Grace and Jennie Skerl  271

List of Contributors  277

Index  281