| CONTENTS |

Acknowledgments \( \textit{ix} \)

Introduction  Foul Matter: Edwin Chadwick, John Ruskin, and Mid-Victorian Aesthesis \( \textit{1} \)

Chapter 1  Dirty Pictures: John Ruskin, \textit{Modern Painters}, and the Victorian Sanitation of Fine Art \( \textit{19} \)

Chapter 2  The Sanitary Narrative: Victorian Reform Fiction and the Putrescence of the Picturesque \( \textit{43} \)

Chapter 3  Victorian Dust Traps \( \textit{67} \)

Chapter 4  The Surgical Arts: Aesthesis and Anaesthesia in Late-Victorian Medical Fiction \( \textit{87} \)

Chapter 5  Aesthetic Anachronisms: Mary Ward’s \textit{The Mating of Lydia} and the Persistent Plot of Sanitary Fiction \( \textit{110} \)

Chapter 6  Intensive Culture: John Ruskin, Sarah Grand, and the Aesthetics of Eugenics \( \textit{138} \)

Coda  On Methods, Materials, and Meaning \( \textit{165} \)

Notes \( \textit{169} \)

Works Cited \( \textit{178} \)

Index \( \textit{187} \)