Mere thanks hardly seem adequate for all the help and support that I have received while bringing this book to completion. But I extend them sincerely and heartily to the mentors, colleagues, friends, family and students without whom Imoinda would have remained in the shade.

This project began under the tutelage of Claudia L. Johnson and Jonathan Lamb and was helped along with the good will and support of my former colleagues at Georgetown, especially Dennis Todd, Gay Gibson Cima, Duncan Wu, Joy Younge, Mark McMorris, Patrick O’Malley Paul Betz, John Hirsh, Sarah MacNamer, Lori Merish, David Gewanter, Angelyn Mitchell, Libbie Rifkin, Norma Tilden, Maureen Corrigan, Steve Wurtzler, M. Lindsay Kaplan, Christine So, Leona Fisher, Patricia O’Connor, Samantha Pinto, Jennifer Fink, Andrew Rubin and Kelly Wickham-Crowley. Deep thanks to all of them. Danny O’Quinn, and Jessica Richard provided immense support when I needed it, as did Tim Watson, who I must thank twice. Without you, Tim, The Woman of Colour would have never seen the light of day. Many sincere thanks for supporting me at all stages of my career. To my esteemed friend and colleague R. Scott Heath, the gin and tonics are on you this time, brother! To my new colleagues at Lehigh University: Scott Paul Gordon, Bob Watts, Stephanie Powell-Watts, Dawn Keetley, Elizabeth Fifer, Elizabeth Dolan, Michael Kramp, Ed Whitley, Jenna Lay and Amardeep Singh—you welcomed me into our department with warmth and graciousness, and your comments and questions during my talk helped me refine my argument in Chapter One. Thank you. To Nicole Aljoe, the S.E.A. roundtable rocked thanks to you and Thaddious Davis, and it helped me complete Chapter Six. To Sandra Strachan-Vieira, Nolana Yip, Rebecca Boylan, and Joseph Fruscione, for so many kind words and deeds, thank you. To Elizabeth Velez, Dennis Williams and all the students under the C.M.E.A. banner, thanks for helping me grow as a person and a teacher, as did my wonderful former English mentees Meaghan Fritz, Meaghan Orie, Bridget Macfarland, Katie Sagal, Pamela Nwaoko and Susan Weeber.
Acknowledgments

A very gracious thank you to Sandy Crooms for keeping me on schedule with such good humor, and also to the readers and editorial staff at The Ohio State University Press, especially Kristen Ebert-Wagner, Eugene O’Connor, Malcolm Litchfield, and Kathy Edwards, whose wonderful comments and suggestions pushed me to sharpen my arguments, structure and prose to produce a better book.

The Agostino Brunias prints are used with the kind permission of the Yale Center for British Art. The Imoinda prints are used with the permission of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. The Isaac Cruikshank print is used with the permission of Heritage Images.

This book is also dedicated to Michael Ragussis who inspired me to seek out these fictional African women, and to my uncles, Emanuel Fevrier and Patrick Dominique. Wherever you are, I hope you all will read it with a smile.