Philosophies of Sex

Bergland, Renee, Williams, Gary

Published by The Ohio State University Press

Bergland, Renee and Gary Williams.
Philosophies of Sex: Critical Essays on The Hermaphrodite.
The Ohio State University Press, 2012.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/23958.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/23958

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=898711
Suzanne Ashworth is an assistant professor and chair of the English Department at Otterbein University. She teaches courses in early American literature, LGBTQ literature, queer theory, and sexuality studies. Her published work centers on nineteenth-century writers and historical conceptions of the body, gender, desire, sex, and sexuality.

Renée Bergland is professor of English at Simmons College in Boston. She has published The National Uncanny: Indian Ghosts and American Subjects (University Press of New England 2000), and Maria Mitchell and the Sexing of Science: An Astronomer among the American Romantics (Beacon 2008).

Mary H. Grant’s most recent academic appointment was as Head of School at the Ellis School in Pittsburgh, PA. She is the author of Private Woman, Public Person: An Account of the Life of Julia Ward Howe from 1819–1868 (Carlson, 1994).

Betsy Klimasmit is associate professor of English at the University of Massachusetts, Boston. She is the author of At Home in the City: Urban Domesticity in American Literature and Culture, 1850–1930 (UP New England, 2005) and co-editor (with Melody Graulich) of Exploring Lost Borders: Critical Essays on Mary Austin (U Nevada P, 1999).

Dana Luciano is associate professor of English and Director of the Women's and Gender Studies Program at Georgetown University. She is the author of Arranging Grief: Sacred Time and the Body in Nineteenth-Century America (NYU, 2007), which won the Modern Language Association's First Book Prize in 2008. She is currently at work on a monograph exploring the erotics of the non-human in nineteenth-century American literature, entitled Romancing the Inhuman: Animacy and Eros in America, 1840–1910, as well as a collection of essays on contemporary LGBT film and video.

Marianne Noble is associate professor in the Department of Literature at American University. She is the author of The Masochistic Pleasures of Sentimental Literature
Contributors

(Princeton UP 2000). She has recently published articles on gothic and sentimental literature and is currently working on a book entitled Sympathy and the Quest for Genuine Human Contact in American Romanticism.

LAURA SALTZ is associate professor of American Studies and Art and director of the American Studies Program at Colby College. She has published articles on nineteenth-century American visual culture, Edith Wharton, and Henry James. She is working on a book entitled To Shadow Forth: Literature and Photography in American Romantic Culture.

KAREN SÁNCHEZ-EPPLER is professor of American Studies and English at Amherst College. She is the author of Touching Liberty: Abolition, Feminism, and the Politics of the Body (California, 1993) and Dependent States: The Child’s Part in Nineteenth-Century American Culture (Chicago 2005), and a founding co-editor of The Journal of the History of Childhood and Youth. The essay published in this collection will be part of her larger study The Unpublished Republic: Manuscript Cultures of the Mid-Nineteenth Century United States.

BETHANY SCHNEIDER is an associate professor of literature at Bryn Mawr College. Her teaching and research interests are in race, ethnicity, gender, sexuality, slavery, childhood and concepts of citizenship and belonging. Her published and forthcoming essays cover a range of topics in American and Native American Studies, and include work on Abraham Lincoln, Jane Johnston Schoolcraft, Craig Womack, and Elias Boudinot.

JOYCE WARREN is professor of English and director of Women’s Studies at Queens College (NY). She is the author of The American Narcissus: Individualism and Women in Nineteenth-Century American Fiction (Rutgers UP, 1984), Fanny Fern: An Independent Woman (Rutgers UP, 1992), and Women, Money, and the Law: Nineteenth-Century Fiction, Gender, and the Courts (U of Iowa P, 2005), as well as editor of numerous essay collections.

GARY WILLIAMS is Distinguished Humanities Professor and chair of the English Department at the University of Idaho. He is the author of Hungry Heart: The Literary Emergence of Julia Ward Howe (U Mass P, 1999) and editor of Howe’s The Hermaphrodite (U Nebraska P, 2004).

ELIZABETH YOUNG is Carl M. and Elsie A. Small Professor of English at Mount Holyoke College. She is the author of Disarming the Nation: Women’s Writing and the American Civil War (Chicago, 1999) and Black Frankenstein: The Making of an American Metaphor (NYU, 2008), and co-author of On Alexander Gardner’s “Photographic Sketch Book” of the Civil War (California, 2007).