Human remains in society

Jean-Marc Dreyfus, Élisabeth Anstett

Published by Manchester University Press

Dreyfus, Jean-Marc and Élisabeth Anstett.
Human remains in society: Curation and exhibition in the aftermath of genocide and mass-violence.

Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/51299.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/51299

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=1952856
Figures

2.1 Museum–Memorial site at Bełżec (photo: Zuzanna Dziuban) page 51

3.1 Northern Adriatic region, 1939 (from Franco Cecotti, Il tempo dei confini: Atlante storico dell’Adriatico nord-orientale nel contesto europeo e mediterraneo, 1748–2008 (Trieste: Irsml FVG, 2011), reproduced by permission of Franco Cecotti) 70

3.2 Cover of Le macabre foibe istriane, a Nazi–Fascist booklet printed in 1944 74

7.1 Location of the extermination and labour camps at Treblinka (photo: Caroline Sturdy Colls) 172

7.2 Some of the personal items unearthed during excavations in the area of the Old Gas Chambers at Treblinka that survive as a testament to the individuals who were sent there (photo: Staffordshire University, Centre of Archaeology) 185