Horizontal Learning in the High Middle Ages

Vanderputten, Steven, Snijders, Tjamke, Long, Micol

Published by Amsterdam University Press

Vanderputten, Steven, et al.
Horizontal Learning in the High Middle Ages: Peer-to-Peer Knowledge Transfer in Religious Communities.

Amsterdam University Press, 2019.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/76700.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/76700
Table of Contents

Acknowledgments 7

1 Introduction 9
   Micol Long and Steven Vanderputten

2 Communal Learning and Communal Identities in Medieval Studies 17
   Consensus, Conflict, and the Community of Practice
   Tjamke Snijders

3 Condiscipuli Sumus 47
   The Roots of Horizontal Learning in Monastic Culture
   Micol Long

4 Ut Fiat Aequalitas 65
   Spiritual Training of the Inner Man in the Twelfth-Century Cloister
   Cédric Giraud

5 Truth as Teaching 81
   Lying and the Ethics of Learning in Twelfth-Century Monastic Culture
   Jay Diehl

6 Making Space for Learning in the Miracle Stories of Peter the Venerable 111
   Marc Saurette

7 Teaching through Architecture 141
   Honorius Augustodunensis and the Medieval Church
   Karl Patrick Kinsella

8 Men and Women in the Life of the Schools 163
   In the Classroom of Hermann of Reichenau
   C. Stephen Jaeger
9 Heloise’s Echo
The Anthropology of a Twelfth-Century Horizontal Knowledge Landscape
Babette Hellemans

10 Forms of Transmission of Knowledge at Saint Gall (Ninth to Eleventh Century)
Nicolangelo D’Acunto

11 Horizontal Learning in Medieval Italian Canonries
Neslihan Şenocak

12 Concluding Observations
Horizontal, Hierarchical, and Community-Oriented Learning in a Wider Perspective
Sita Steckel

Bibliography

Index

List of illustrations

Figure 1 Dimensions of practice as the property of a community (slightly simplified version of Wenger, Communities of Practice: Learning, Meaning, and Identity, 73, fig. 2.1) 41
Figure 2 Dedicator image of the Gospel book commissioned by Gunther of Lippoldsberg (formerly Kassel, Landesbibliothek 2° Ms. Theol. 59, fol. 73v)
© Bildarchiv Foto Marburg as n. 138.815, reproduced with permission 166