I would first of all like to thank Frank Kessler and Nanna Verhoeff at Utrecht University and William Uricchio at Utrecht University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology who have encouraged and supported this project from the very beginning. Their stimulating input has added greatly to the substance of this work.

This book has also benefited from the advice and the fruitful suggestions by Tom Gunning (University of Chicago) whom I would also like to thank for his support.

The research for this book has been made possible by the support of the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO).

Special thanks also to the Nederlands Filmmuseum, and in particular to former Director Rien Hagen and current Director Sandra den Hamer, who believed in this project and have made it possible for me to carry it out.

Among the people who have helped me at the Nederlands Filmmuseum, I would like to especially thank Mark-Paul Meyer, not least for all that he has taught me in the past thirteen years. His comments on this project have been of great value.

Many thanks also to my colleagues Leontien Bout, Andreas Busche, Catherine Cormon, Guy Edmonds, Anne Gant, Irene Haan, Rixt Jonkman, Nico de Klerk, Annike Kross, Simona Monizza, Ad Pollé, Emjay Rechsteiner, Geke Roelink, Elif Rongen-Kaynakci, Frank Roumen, Jan Scholten, Dorette Schootemeijer, Walter Swagemakers, Ronny Temme, Frédérique Urlings, Jeannette Verschure, and to my ex colleagues and friends Eef Masson (Utrecht University) and Claudy Op den Kamp (Haghefilm).
I would also like to thank my colleagues of the MA Programme Preservation and Presentation of the Moving Image (P&P) at the University of Amsterdam, as this course was an important inspiration for my work. In particular, many thanks to Julia Noordegraaf for her support. I also owe a dept to my P&P students who were an important part of this inspiration.

This book would not have been possible without the assistance of the archives and laboratories that were the object of my case studies. My gratitude goes in particular to Grover Crisp and Michael Friend (Sony Pictures Entertainment), Andrew Lampert (Anthology Film Archives), Rani Singh (Harry Smith Archives) and Thomas C. Christensen (Danish Film Institute). Many thanks also to Haghefilm (Peter Limburg, Paulo Fonseca, Juan Vrijs, and Tom De Smet) and Cineric (Balazs Nyari, Tom Heitman, Simon Lund, and Diana Little). As regards my analysis of the Digital Film Lab, I would like to thank my friend Paul Read (consultant to the lab) for his valuable help.

I am particularly indebted to my dear friend Sabina Gorini for her irreplaceable intellectual and emotional support.

Thank you to my parents Silvia Levis and Marco Fossati for the many ways in which they have made this project possible and for simply being who they are.

This book owes its existence to Andrea Battiston whose continuous feedback throughout the project has greatly contributed to its clarity and final form. Thank you also for being a great life partner and father.
