From Media Hype to Twitter Storm

Vasterman, Peter

Published by Amsterdam University Press

Vasterman, Peter.
From Media Hype to Twitter Storm: News Explosions and Their Impact on Issues, Crises and Public Opinion.

Amsterdam University Press, 2018.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/66609.

For additional information about this book https://muse.jhu.edu/book/66609

For content related to this chapter https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2366117
List of figures and tables

- Figure 1.1. Coverage of four sexual assaults in La Repubblica, 1 January 2009-31 March 2009. Number of articles per day
- Figure 1.2. Frequency of the words ‘urban decay’ and ‘security’ as problems of petty crime and immigration in headlines from Corriere della Sera 1992-2010. Absolute values
- Figure 1.3. Percentage of people who consider the area where they live ‘much’ or ‘somewhat’ at risk of crime, 1993-2014

- Table 2.1: Overview of news waves per period
- Figure 2.1: Percentage of articles found in news waves over time
- Figure 2.2: Political content of news waves
- Figure 2.3: The shape of news waves: percentage of news articles per day in a steep news wave and a long news wave

- Table 3.1: Indicators of issue dynamics
- Table 3.2: Distribution of features of 82 issues – equally-sized groups
- Table 3.3: Four dimensions of issue characteristics
- Table 3.4: Features of issues profiles
- Figure 3.1: Descriptive measures of issue dynamics: Idealized visualization
- Figure 3.2: Development of ten single-profile issues
- Figure 3.3: Development of mixed-profile issues
- Figure 3.4: Issues that are not well-explained by the five profiles. Less than one quarter of their variation is accounted for by their profiling (along with seven more issues).

- Figure 5.1: Level of imitation during (non) routine periods
- Figure 6.1: The anatomy of media hypes

- Figure 7.1: Media Tsunami on the Charter of Quebec Values, 2012-2014
- Figure 7.2: Central theme of news items, Quebec 2012-2014

- Table 8.1: The Carcavelos mugging in the written press (11-15 July 2005)
- Table 8.2: Incidents of four type of crimes, 1995-2005
- Table 9.1: Data collected from online media and websites
- Table 9.2: Media hypes and issue amplification
- Figure 9.1: Amplification of public attention
- Figure 9.2: Public attention to individual social stations

- Table 10.1: Overview of interviewees
- Figure 10.1: A simple model of how a media storms affects front-line workers

- Figure 13.1: Stylized attention dynamics in the traditional media arena
- Figure 13.2: Patterns of issue attention in a hybrid media system
- Figure 13.3: Patterns of journalists' and citizens' attention in a hybrid media system

- Figure 14.1: Reconstructed hype cycle of the ‘flower bucket hype’
- Figure 15.1: search queries for immigrants + thirty-five euro (March 2014-October 2016)