Medieval Communities and the Mad

Pfau, Aleksandra Nicole

Published by Amsterdam University Press

Pfau, Aleksandra Nicole.
Medieval Communities and the Mad: Narratives of Crime and Mental Illness in Late Medieval France.

Amsterdam University Press, 2020.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/82196.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/82196
I would like to thank my colleagues at Hendrix College for their generous support of my continuing research for this book project. I am also grateful for the staff of the Archives Nationales microfilm room. The research began during my graduate work at the University of Michigan, and it was shaped in important ways by the guidance of Helmut Puff, Diane Owen Hughes, Peggy McCracken, and Michael MacDonald. However, it would never have come to fruition without the support and occasional prodding of my mentor, Wendy Turner. I would also like to thank the anonymous reviewers and the editorial board who provided excellent suggestions for how to improve the work. There are too many other individuals who have contributed to this project in large and small ways while I have worked on it over the last fifteen years for me to thank them all here, but I will be eternally grateful for all the conversations that helped me refine and reshape my ideas. Finally, all my love to David and Rachel, who lived with this project for many years.