Derecho privado y modernización

Rosario Polotto, María, Keiser, Thorsten, Duve, Thomas

Published by Max Planck Institute for Legal History and Legal Theory

Rosario Polotto, María, et al.
Derecho privado y modernización: América Latina y Europa en la primera mitad del siglo XX.
1 ed. Max Planck Institute for Legal History and Legal Theory, 2015.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/73801

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2541728
Contributors

Agostina Gentili is a history graduate (National University of Córdoba – UNC), doctoral scholar (CONICET, School of Philosophy and Humanities Research Center – UNC) and Assistant Professor of Social and Economic History of Argentina and Theory and Techniques of Social Research (School of Arts, UNC). Her research focuses on family and childhood historiography. She studies the relationships between families and public authorities, researching custody of children at Courts for Minors in Córdoba between 1957 and 1974.

Mario G. Losano, after teaching at the State University of Milan, is now emeritus professor of Legal Philosophy and Legal Informatics at Università degli Studi del Piemonte Orientale, and professor at the Doctorate School of Law and Institutions of the Università degli Studi, Turin. His main research interests are the German legal philosophy of the 19th century, the circulation of European legal ideas outside of Europe in the 19th century, as well as e-government and privacy protection. Bio-bibliography in: www.mariolosesano.it

Daniela Marino is Full Professor for 20th Century Mexican History in the M.A. and Ph.D. Program in History and Ethnohistory at the National School of Anthropology and History (ENAH, Mexico). She is also a member of the National Research System (SNI-CONACYT). She holds a Ph.D. in History (El Colegio de Mexico) and a certificate in Legal Anthropology (INAH). Marino’s main research interests include Mexican Indian town history in the 19th and 20th Centuries and the changes in the legal framework, particularly on the land property system (communal/private/ ejidal), and indigenous participation at the different instances of justice administration.

Marcelo Neves is Full Professor of Public Law and Legal Theory at the University of Brasilia Law School. He is currently a visiting scholar at Yale Law School. He studied at the Law School of the Federal University of Pernambuco in Brazil (LLB and LLM) and at the Universities of Frankfurt am Main and Bremen in Germany (Dr. iur.). He was awarded the »Habilitation« at the University of Fribourg Law School in Switzerland. He was Research Fellow of the Alexander von Humboldt Foundation at the Universities of Frankfurt am Main, Hamburg, Berlin (Humboldt University) and Flensburg in Germany as well as at the LSE, DAAD Research Fellow at the University of Bremen, Jean Monnet Fellow at the European University Institute in Italy and Adam Smith Fellow at the University of Glasgow. He was Visiting Professor at the Universities of Frankfurt and Flensburg in Germany, the University of Fribourg in Switzerland and the University of Chile. His main fields of research are the problems of constitutionalism in world society between centers and peripheries, law, state and constitution from the viewpoint of systems theory and discourse theory, and transconstitutionalism.

Yolanda de Paz Trueba is Professor at the National University of Central Buenos Aires and holds a PhD in History. She is Permanent Researcher at the National Research Council (CONICET) in Argentina and in the Institute of Geography, History and Social Sciences/CONICET. Her research interests include the place of women in the public sphere in the late nineteenth and early twentieth century. Currently her concerns focus on addressing the social, political and institutional practices affecting children (especially girls) between 1880 and 1920 in the province of Buenos Aires.

María Rosario Polotto is doctoral scholar at the Law School of the Pontifical University of Argentina, and Assistant Professor of Legal History at the same University and at the University of Buenos Aires. Also she is a researcher of the Research Institute of Legal History. Her research interests are the history of law in the twentieth century, especially the civil law.
Maria Rosa Pugliese is Full Professor of Legal History at the Faculty of Law of the University of Buenos Aires, Argentina. Doctor of Law from the same University. She is a researcher of the Research Institute of Legal History and Social Research Ambrosio Lucas Gioja (University of Buenos Aires). Her research interests are the history of law in the twentieth century, the process of legal secularisation, marriage and justice. She is also interested in the study of Indian Law in the Rio de la Plata.

Gustavo Silveira Siqueira, Ph.D., is Assistant Professor of Legal History at the Rio de Janeiro State University (UERJ), visiting researcher at the Brazilian National Library (PNAP-R Program FBN) and member of the program »JCE – FAPERJ« Rio de Janeiro. He works on the history of the workers’ strike in Brazil.

Alessandro Somma, a Research fellow at the Max-Planck-Institute for Legal history in Frankfurt am Main, Germany until 2002, is currently professor of Comparative law and Pro-rector for cultural activities and town-gown relations at the University of Ferrara, Italy. He is a member of the International Academy of Comparative law and of the board of the Italian Association of Comparative law. His main research fields include Theory and History of comparative law, Nazi and fascist theory of law, European private law, Globalization and theory of the state, Sovereign debt restructuring.