Holocaust Education

Foster, Stuart, Pearce, Andy, Pettigrew, Alice

Published by University College London

Foster, Stuart, et al.
Holocaust Education: Contemporary challenges and controversies.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/81875.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/81875

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2777939
Contents

List of figures vii
About the contributors viii
Preface x
Acknowledgements xii

1. Challenges, issues and controversies: The shapes of ‘Holocaust education’ in the early twenty-first century 1
   Andy Pearce

2. To what extent does the acquisition of historical knowledge really matter when studying the Holocaust? 28
   Stuart Foster

3. Learning the lessons of the Holocaust: A critical exploration 50
   Arthur Chapman

4. ‘They were just following orders’: Relationships between Milgram’s obedience experiments and conceptions of Holocaust perpetration 74
   Rebecca Hale

5. Look before you leap: Teaching about the Holocaust in primary schools 95
   Eleni Karayianni

6. British Responses to the Holocaust: Student and teacher perspectives on the development of a new classroom resource 114
   Tom Haward

7. ‘I know it’s not really true, but it might just tell us . . . ’: The troubled relationship between The Boy in the Striped Pyjamas and understanding about the Holocaust 135
   Darius Jackson
8. Antisemitism and Holocaust education
   Andy Pearce, Stuart Foster, Alice Pettigrew
150

9. Muslim students and the Holocaust in England’s secondary schools: ‘Reluctant learners’ or constructed controversies?
   Alice Pettigrew
171

10. Seeing things differently: The use of atrocity images in teaching about the Holocaust
    Ruth-Anne Lenga
195

Index
221