We offer particular thanks to The Royal Institution of Great Britain for giving us access to the previously unpublished manuscript poems and enabling us to publish them. Professor Frank James, formerly Head of Collections and Heritage, has been highly encouraging and supportive, and we thank also Charlotte New and Jane Harrison for their unflagging work in making the archives accessible to us. We are grateful to two anonymous referees, who gave us constructive feedback which was most helpful in our final revisions.

We have benefited greatly from all the efforts of publishing The Correspondence of John Tyndall, of which one of us (Roland Jackson) is a general editor, and thank Professor Bernard Lightman and all those who have contributed to the project. We thank Pittsburgh University Press for permission to use endnotes from the handful of poems that have been published in the Tyndall correspondence.

It has been a pleasure to work with UCL Press. We thank Chris Penfold, Jaimee Biggins, Margie Coughlin, Niranjana Anand, Liron Gilenberg, Lucy Hall, Servis Filmsetting and any others behind the scenes of whom we are unaware.
