Bloomsbury Scientists

Boulter, Michael

Published by University College London

Boulter, Michael.
Bloomsbury Scientists: Science and Art in the Wake of Darwin.
University College London, 2017.
Project MUSE. muse.jhu.edu/book/81943.

For additional information about this book
https://muse.jhu.edu/book/81943

For content related to this chapter
https://muse.jhu.edu/related_content?type=book&id=2779849
3 Eccentric campaigners, 1890s

4 Shaw, Back to Methuselah, p. 27.
5 Shaw, Back to Methuselah, p. 27.
13 Stillman, Samuel Butler, p. 205.
14 Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 115.
19 Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 42.

4 Insiders and outsiders, 1890s

4 The origin of this is uncertain. One clue is that the poet Henry Newbolt and the philosopher John McTaggart were contemporaries at Clifton College.
5 A. Whitehead used these words when he introduced Bertrand Russell to an audience for the William James Lecture at Harvard in 1940.
7 Levy, Moore, p. 172.
10 Ray Lankester to H. G. Wells, 12 July 1900. Wells Papers, University of Illinois.
11 H. G. Wells to Ray Lankester, 12 or 14 July 1900, Lankester Family Papers.
12 Woolf, Roger Fry, p. 75.
13 Woolf, Roger Fry, p. 65.
14 Woolf, Roger Fry, p. 65.

5 A new breed of professional, 1890–1904

1 Ray Lankester, 4 October 1890. Lankester Family Papers.
2 Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 176.

6 A new breed of biologist, 1900–10

7 The rise of eugenics, 1901–14

1 Ray Lankester, Notes on degeneration, Lankester Family Papers.

13 Pearson, ‘The Cavendish Lecture.’

8 Old habits die hard, 1901–14

1. Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 142.
2. Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 142.
15. Daily Mirror, 30 March 1914.

9 Time passes, 1914–18

2. Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 205.

10 The one culture, 1920s and 1930s

1. Shaw, Back to Methuselah, p. 36.
5. Woolf, Roger Fry, p. 271.
6. Woolf, Mr. Bennett and Mrs Brown.
7. Ray Lankester, 13 November and 11 December 1918, to The Times.
8  Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 213.
9  Lester, E. Ray Lankester, p. 211.

Postscript

